MOST ANXIOUS DAY IN YEARS FOR EUROPEANS

Czechs to Invoke Martial Law if Needed—French Forces Ready.

By The Associated Press.

Europe spent its most anxious day since the World war in last-minute preparations for whatever might spring from the speech in which Adolf Hitler was expected to disclose whether German would use force against Czechoslovakia.

In Prague, the Czechoslovak government decided to invoke martial law in sections of the Sudeten German region if serious disorders develop after Hitler's speech at Nurnberg.

Meanwhile, the little republic, fearing a bitter and threatening speech by Hitler, kept her troops in readiness along her border with Germany.

The French cabinet met with Premier Daladier to keep close watch on "exterior problems" while France's fighting forces—an estimated 2,000,000 men, 2,000 warplanes and 200 warships—were held at the peak of their fighting efficiency. A telephone connection was held open between the office of Daladier—also war minister—and No. 10 Downing street, London. He and Prime Minister Chamberlain were said to have conversed frequently.

Crowds gathered in Paris streets to watch news bulletin boards, tensely awaiting word from Germany.

British Cabinet Emergency.

The British cabinet met in emergency sessions for two hours and then adjourned, apparently confident all possible had been done to head off war and to be ready if German forces start marching to the east.

Observers expressed belief that British naval, military and air pre-

PRESIDENT CHEERED BY REPORTS OF SON

James Recovering Following Operation Performed on Sunday.

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UP). President Roosevelt, cheered by the recovery of his eldest son, James, from an abdominal operation, swung his attention to the critical international situation. James underwent an operation for removal of a nonmalignant ulcer Sunday.

The president spent more than an hour at James' bedside then returned to his special train where he studied reports on the Czechoslovakian crisis.

Mr. Roosevelt was also watching the political situation in Maryland, where citizens were voting.

Doctors informed the president at 9 a. m. that James "had as good a night as could be expected for his post operative night."

Dr. Howard K. Gray of the Mayo staff, who performed the operation, said James' condition was good and that he was recovering "satisfactorily." Dr. Gray is the son of Carl Gray, former U. P. president.

James was troubled by an attack of hiccoughs when his father arrived at his bedside Sunday night.

"What are they giving you?" the president asked.

"Carbon dioxide," James replied.

"If they knew us they'd give you bread soda," the president said. (Bread soda is a home remedy for hiccoughs.)

Then he remarked: "I understand the doctors had a tough time getting thru your old rowing muscles."

James, like his brother, Franklin, rowed in the Harvard university varsity shell.

MAY HIKE INSURANCE MARK

Crowley Making Survey of Larger Deposits.

WASHINGTON. (AP). Chairman Crowley disclosed that the federal deposit insurance corporation is studying the possibility of insuring bank deposits above the present $5,000 limit.

Monday's mails carried to the 13,719 insured banks of the country a questionnaire asking the number of their deposit accounts below $5,000, between $5,000 and $10,000, between $10,000 and $25,000, and over $25,000. Crowley, recalling that Chairman Steagall (d., Ala.) of the house banking committee advocated the increase, said the FDIC wanted to find out how much as extra risk would be involved.

Crowley expressed belief that if the additional risk was very small, there would be little or no objection to increased insurance.

Previous estimates have shown that 95 percent of the nation's deposits are covered by the $5,000 insurance now provided, but no recent studies have been made and deposits since have grown to the near record total of about $47,500,000,000.

U. OF N. FRESHMAN DAY DRAWS 1,700

Chancellor Boucher Makes His First Student Address at Convocation.

Approximately 1,700 University of Nebraska freshmen assembled in the coliseum Monday morning for freshman day exercises and heard Chancellor Boucher in his first address to a student body of the university. The chancellor seemed to be a distinct success with his youthful auditors, from the moment he addressed them as "fellow freshmen" until he sat down amid applause with a roar of sincerity in it.

Dr. Boucher told the freshmen, "We're going to treat you like ladies and gentlemen, and we expect you to act accordingly." He

WESLEYAN REGISTRATION

Freshmen, Upperclassmen Swarm Campus.

Scores of freshmen were trotting about the Nebraska Wesleyan university campus Monday morning, registering for fall classes and talking over their programs with faculty members. In the afternoon, they were joined by upperclassmen in registration, which will continue thru Tuesday.

The last half of the week will be devoted to orientation exercises and consultations with faculty advisers. No figures were available early Monday afternoon, but indications were that registration would run somewhat ahead of last year's. Some indication was the fact that 133 freshmen took psychology examinations last week end. Dr. B. F. Schwartz, new chancellor, was at the helm Monday, having preached his farewell sermon in his Indianola, Ia., church Sunday.

FOURTH OF STATE INCOME GOES TO THE GOVERNMENT

Property Tax Quarter of Total, Shumate Tells Legislative Council.

Dr. R. V. Shumate, research director for the legislative council, reported to the council in session here Monday that more than one-fourth of the total income of Nebraskans, in 1937, either went for or was pledged to, the support of government. He placed the state's total income last year at $575,000,000 and the total governmental cost—federal, state, and local—at $148,646,225, or 25.28 percent of the total.

Dr. Shumate based his cost findings on revenue receipts in Nebraska for units of government, as follows:

Federal, $85,536,440, of which $14,151,895 was derived by direct taxation, the remainder being an estimate of what Nebraskans contributed in the form of "hidden" consumer taxes, such as those on cigarets, cosmetics, etc., and a calculation of what the state's share of the national debt would be.

State, $18,160,167, including all the various types of taxes, fees, etc.; counties, $18,044,516; school districts, $16,413,930; cities and villages, $10,050,840; drainage districts, $184,000; irrigation districts, $256,332.

Property taxes accounted for only 25.94 percent of the total. Direct taxes constituted $77,261,680, or slightly more than half the entire bill.

Per Capita Costs Low.

The per capita cost in direct taxes was approximately $56.64, while that for the total revenue, including the federal estimates, was $109 as against $132.73 for the entire nation.

APPOINTMENT OF PASTORS DELAYED

Rumored Due to Inability to Find Right Place for E. Guy Cutshall.

The list of ministerial appointments will be found on Page 2 of this paper.

OMAHA. (AP). The 78th annual Nebraska Methodist conference cabinet resolved its deadlock by naming E. Guy Cutshall, former chancellor at Wesleyan university, as conference counsellor of finance.

OMAHA. (AP). Blocked by what was termed as "unprecedented situation," the Nebraska Methodist conference cabinet wrestled with ministerial appointments but was unable to predict when the stalemate would be resolved.

The conference took a long lunch hour, recessing before noon until 1:30. But the cabinet could not promise the long awaited appointments would be ready then.

"We've run up against unexpected complications," said Bishop Mead of Kansas. "Probably the appointments will be ready sometime this afternoon, but we can't promise anything."

No official statement of reasons for the difficulty could be obtained, but gossip on the conference floor pointed toward dissension over placement of E. Guy Cutshall, former chancellor of Nebraska Wesleyan university. Dr. Cutshall, back after a year's leave for study and travel in Europe and the Holy Land, said nothing.

Under Methodist church law, Bishop Mead is empowered to make the appointments himself, but in practice th district superintendents and secretary, who comprise the cabinet, advise him.

The conference pledged itself to fight the proposed amendment to legalize slot machines in Nebraska. A resolution adopted said in part:

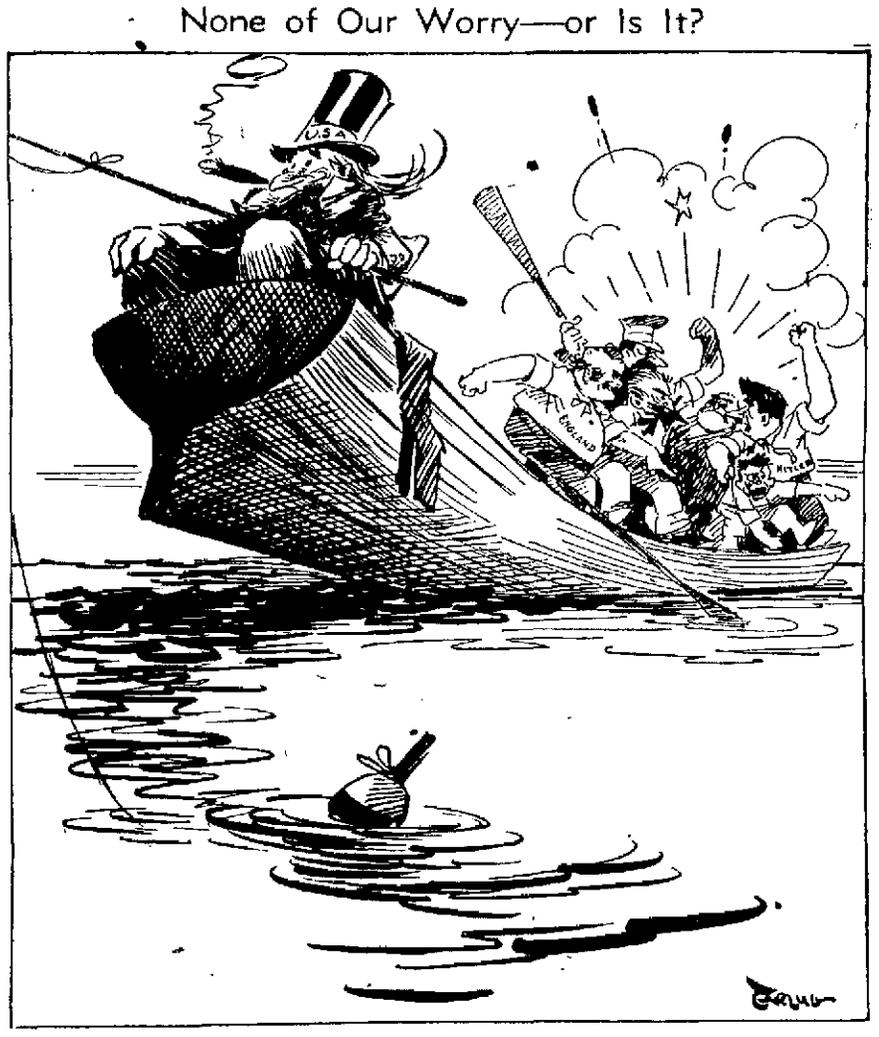
"We deplore the efforts being made to adopt a constitutional amendment which will legalize slot machine gambling. . . It is misleading in that people are made to believe considerable revenue wil be realized for old age pensions and school funds."

F. A. High of Lincoln, formerly head of the state Anti-Saloon League, predicted the amendment will acrry "unless the churches get busy and work for its defeat."

REHEAR K. C. CASE.

WASHINGTON. (AP). Rehearing of the Kansas City stockyards rate case was started by an agriculture department examiner to meet supreme court objections that previous procedure denied commission men a fair hearing. The case involves the right of the secretary of agriculture to fix stockyard commission rates, and distribution of $650,000 impounded by the federal district court in Kansas City.

None of Our Worry—or Is It?



Let the Children Live

This appeal is not addressed to the foolhardy motorist, the police will take care of him, but to the driver with a conscience.

Monday, hundreds of tiny tots, just five years old, went to school for the first time. Cute little boys, scrubbed within an inch of their lives, darling little girls with their hair bows set full sail like a clipper ship; they all kissed mother good bye at the school house door.

In each schoolyard there were racked scores of bicycles on which thousands of Lincoln youngsters raced to school, excited at the prospect of going back to their studies.

Don't let your carelessness cut that happiness short. If you are a driver with a conscience, one who would lie awake nights in remorse over the knowledge that your car and carelessness had smashed a little body, give an extra thought to your driving during the coming months.

The five year olds will soon learn the way to school by themselves but remember that after all they're nothing but babies. Yours is the mature judgment—when you drive forget your office problems, the unpaid bills and others of life's cares—their carelessness can be forgiven, yours can't. Watch out for the children.

A STATE WAGNER ACT PROPOSED BY BREWER

Nebraska Labor Head Wants Right to Collective Bargaining Assured.

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP). Roy M. Brewer, president of the State Federation of Labor, recommended passage of a "state Wagner act" guaranteeing the right of collective bargaining to all employes.

Delivering the annual president's address before the federation convention here, Brewer charged the delegates to press for repeal of Nebraska's antipicketing law, and for "enactment of a state Wagner act to supplement the national act."

"The right of employes to free organization is becoming more generally recognized than ever before, as a result of the popularity among workers of the national labor relation act," Brewer said.

"However, there are a great number of employes in Nebraska who do not come under that act, and while there may be a legal justification for this fact, there certainly is no moral justification for it, and I believe with the right kind of campaign we can bring about a correction of this condition by the passage of a state law guaranteeing the right of collective bargaining to all employes. At least, I think we should try very hard to bring it about."

Brewer recommended a "more permanent and definite plan" between labor groups in the state for the purpose of taking a "more systematic" part in elections. He said of 28 candidates endorsed by the federation in the primary unicameral race, 19 were successful.

He told the convention it was

LINCOLN SCHOOLS REOPEN

Increase of Over 350 Shown in First Figures.

School pictures will be found on page..

Lincoln's streets resounded with the trample of little feet Monday morning as morethan 14,000 pupils poured into the city's 30 schools to resume classes after the long summer vacation. A hasty check of enrolment revealed that by noon 362 more pupils were registered than there were last year by noon of the first day. The total this year at noon was 14,261, last year 13,899.

These figures, it was pointed out in the office of the superintendent of schools, are the result of a telephone check at noon and do not take into consideration added enrolments in the afternoon. The official figures will be announced by Supt. Lefler Tuesday morning at the regular meeting of the board of education.

Before 8 o'clock pupils walking and on bicycles were headed for the high schools where classes began at 8:20. Elementary classes convened at 9. At the schools, from Lakeview with its one teacher-principal to Lincoln high with its staff of several hundred teachers, were humming with activity. And, to add to the educational picture, some 2,000 freshmen were busy on the Wesleyan and University of Nebraska compuses.

SWISS GUARD FRONTIER

Border Mines All Loaded With Explosives.

BERNE, Switzerland. (UP) Mines at all points on the Swiss frontier were loaded with explosives at noon on order of the military department, so that in case of emergency, railroads and roads between Germany and France could be blown up. This was the final stage in the preparation of Switzerland's little army to repel at whatever cost, any effort to use Switzerland as a corridor for foreign troops. The mines extend all along the frontiers of Switzerland, bordering on Germany, France and Italy.

TRUCK OFFICIALS MEET HERE; WILL ELECT SECRETARY

Operators Choose Successor to C. E. Hall as Union Meets in Omaha.

Directors of the Nebraska Commercial Truckers association met in the Lincoln hotel Monday forenoon to name an executive secretary to succeed Charles Hall who recently resigned the position. Several applicants were interviewed by the directors, but J. M. Bramlette, spokesman for the group, said no selection would be made until further conferences Monday afternoon and perhaps not then.

Altho no statement of their proceedings was released, it was expected the operators' meeting here would have a rather direct bearing on negotiations with teamsters union officials tentatively scheduled for Tuesday. Lee Jeffreys, vice president of Local No. 608, and Harry Tankersley, secretary, were representing Lincoln drivers and dock helpers at a union meeting in Omaha Monday.

Selection of permanent headquarters was another matter of business facing the Truckers association committee. Decision to move their state offices to Lincoln to be nearer the state railway commission was announced on Aug. 28, coincident with Mr. Hall's resignation.

Members of the committee meeting here included J. H. Bramlette and J. H. Loper, Lincoln; W. L. Maus, M. M. Krupinsky, W. E. Boquet, Omaha; William McAllister, York; Walter Petersen, Grand Island; Tom Coffey, Alma and Ralph Woods, Hastings.

OMAHA. (UP). The Nebraska trucking situation involving union drivers and employers was expected to come to a head late Monday. A national union subcommit-

STOCKS UP DESPITE CRISIS

Gains Running to 3 Points Indicate Peace Hope.

NEW YORK. (AP). In the face of anxiety over the German chancellor's portentous address at Nurnberg, Wall street quietly bid for stocks Monday, sending shares of several leading corporations up $1 to $3, indicating hopes of a peaceful solution of the European crisis. The advance was almost wholly recorded before Wall street financial news tickers began to report Chancellor Hitler's opening remarks, in the final minutes of trading.

Shares closing $1.50 to $3 higher included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Westinghouse Electric, Dupont, Allied Chemical, Eastman and U. S. Rubber.

HITLER WARNS THE WORLD DEMOCRACIES OF HIS INTENTIONS

To Help Sudeten Germans if They Cannot Defend Themselves.

NURNBERG. (UP). If the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia cannot defend themselves, "they will receive help from us," Fuehrer Hitler declared in forthright words Monday night.

Making the speech which the whole world awaited in the knowledge that it might mean peace or war, Hitler warned the democracies that Germany will not allow foreign nations to suppress the 3,500,000 sudetens in Czechoslovakia.

"Depriving these people of their rights must end," Hitler proclaimed. He asked statesmen to remember his February announcement that he would not tolerate persecution of the Sudetens. "That was no empty phrase," he shouted.

Hitler rejected the idea of a plebiscite in Czechoslovakia after declaring Sudeten Germans were

"being systematically ruined and doomed to slow extinction."

"A plebiscite in Czechoslovakia," the fuehrer said, "would only be conducted under brutal oppression."

Reviewing the first weeks of the crisis arising from the autonomy demands of the Sudeten Germans, Hitler denied Germany had any intention of marching into Czechoslovakia at that time, four months ago.

"The right of self determination must be given to them!"

YOUNG SLAYER FLEES BEFORE POSSE OF 100

Lad of 17 Accused of Killing Foster Parents and Sister.

DEER RIVER, Minn. (UP). Harry Yern was captured by a sheriff's posse in wooded country six miles west.

DEER RIVER, Minn. (UP). Harry Yers, 17, sought in connection with a triple murder Sunday, escaped from a posse of almost 100 men who had surrounded a haystack where he was believed hiding. Yers apparently slipped thru the police lines shortly before dawn, while Sheriff Elmer Madson of Itasca county was awaiting reinforcements from St. Louis county.

Yers was believed armed with a .30-30 rifle, the weapon used in the slaying of his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Yama, and his 25 year old foster-sister, also adopted by the Yamas.

Sheriff Madson at once began a search of the wooded country along both sides of the Mississippi river south of Deer river.

Police also were sent to the homes of relatives of the youth in the surrounding area. A note tied to the pump handle, signed by Yers, said he had gotten "mad at the folks and killed them." The youth then fled in an automobile, but wrecked it a short distance from the Yama farm.

IS RUMORED THAT IOWA-NEBRASKA SOLD

King Declines Comment; Myers Said Negotiating for Nebraska Power.

"I have no particular comment to make," said L. R. King, Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power company president, when asked about the report that the company had been sold for $21,500,000 to the hydro-electric districts.

Mr. King pointed out that during recent months there had been numerous rumors to the effect that the company would be sold to the United Light & Power, and each report had been followed by a denial.

"I don't know any authority for such a story," he said, "and I don't see how another denial to another rumor would do much good." There is evidently nothing much to be gained by denying the falsity of the rumors, he said.

OMAHA. (AP). The Omaha World-Herald said reports in Omaha financial circles were that the Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power company of Lincoln has been sold to the Nebraska Public Hydroelectric districts for $21,500,000. The newspaper said the price, if correct, is about 6 million dollars higher than the figure mentioned in previous speculations.

It was reported Guy C. Myers, broker representing the public hydroelectric districts, is negotiating for the Nebraska Power company of Omaha for a price between 35 and 40 million dollars.

Closing of the deal at Omaha is subject to a 90 day notice to the city. Nebraska Power is owned by Electric Bond & Share, who recently agreed to sell its properties to the federal financed projects at Knoxville, Tenn., and in a number of Texas counties. Iowa-Nebraska is owned by United Light & Power company.

WEATHER IS CLOUDY, COOL THRUOUT STATE

Rainfall Total in Lincoln 1.24—Week End Showers Cover Nebraska.

Cool, cloudy weather, with showers continuing at some points, prevailed over Nebraska Monday following week end rains.

A storm in the area northwest of Lincoln Sunday night brought an inch of moisture to Osceola, .85 of an inch to Stromsburg, and .48 of an inch to Polk. Nearly every section of the state received generous precipitation over the week end.

A downpour of 2.56 inches fell at Columbus during the past 30 hours. Even heavier rains upstream sent the Loup river to the top of its banks Monday morning.

Airlines weather stations reported sprinkling rains falling between Franklin and Cheyenne Monday morning, and misting at Grand Island and Overton.

A. V. Nordquist, assistant state-federal crop statistician, said the rainfall total since Sept. 1 has been better than any of the last three years. The moisture apparently has saved the alfalfa crop in southeastern Nebraska, which had suffered during the recent week long heat wave.

Moisture reported during the

Ruth Rietfors, Maid at Albert Koenig Home, Has a Close Call as Lightning Damages the House

Miss Ruth Rietfors, maid at the Albert A. Koenig home, 1313 Piedmont, had a close brush with death at 1 a. m. Sunday when a bolt of lightning struck the Koenig home.

The narrowness of her escape can be judged by the fact that the girl's eyebrows were singed by the burst of lightning. She suffered a black eye, a cut on the face from falling plaster and was badly stunned by the crash. Monday, she said, she considered herself lucky to be alive.

Damage to the home was estimated by Mr. Koenig at $750.

The bolt of lightning struck the south chimney of the home, jumped thru the deck to the room on the third floor where the girl was sleeping. Holes were punctured in the plaster and the charge was diffused somewhat, part of it scattering along light and telephone wires, putting those services out of commission.

Chimney stones, weighing as much as five pounds, were blown over a 100 foot area. Most of the chimney stones crashed against the side of the house and slid down onto the south porch which was demolished by the avalanche of debris. The porch will have to be completely rebuilt.

A number of window panes in the room of Miss Rietfors were broken out and a considerable amount of wall paper was burned off the wall.

No one else in the house was injured by the crash. Miss Rietfors said she was asleep when the lightning struck. She was stunned, she said, and woke to find plaster over her. She became hysterical and ran screaming to Mrs. Koenig.

WANTS THE COUNCIL TO STICK TO 'FACTS'

Not a Policy Making, Legislative Body, Says Ashmore.

Senator Hugh Ashmore of Palisade said Monday in connection with the meeting of the legislative council that he would be against any move to have the council become anything but a fact finding body.

"I think that the only legislative or policy making body in this state is the legislature and any suggestion that we draw conclusions from the facts found by the research workers I will fight," he said.

This was in answer to a suggestion by Dr. A. L. Miller of Kimball that Dr. Roger V. Shumate, director, make a separate report drawing conclusions from his finding, which the council could thresh out.

Aside from his regular report, Shumate announced that $14,915,000 would be appropriated by the state during the biennium to match federal funds

The council will answer a letter from a Texas legislator in which it was suggested that unless Nebraska repealed its high excise tax on oleomargarine made with cottonseed oil, Texas might do a little discriminatory taxing herself. It was pointed out that hundreds of tons of cottonseed meal are used in Nebraska for cow feed every year.

Of the 142 new cases of blind assistance in the state during the past year only nine are receiving the full $30 per month assistance and of the 3,510 old age cases new in the last year only 33, less than 1 percent, were getting a full $30 per month.

The meeting is expected to last two days. Most of the members were present.

BREAKIN ATTEMPTED.

Police reported Monday morning that someone broke out a window on the north side of the Northwestern Iron & Metal company building at 9th and T. Nothing was found missing by the management. The attempted breakin occured sometime between 1:30 a. m. and 3:30 a. m.

O'Neill is the only weather station to report less moisture this year than in 1937, when 18.63 inches had fallen by Sept. 12. This year observers have measured 18.57.

In Lincoln the mercury climbed to a high of 90 at 4 and 5 p. m., Sunday following rain that brought an added 1.24 inches of moisture Saturday evening and Sunday morning. Skies were darkly overcast Monday, however, and rain threatened to send temperatures down.

North of Auburn, in Nemaha county, a large barn on the H. C. Ashcroft farm was struck by lightning and destroyed, together with its contents, Saturday night. Loss was estimated at several thousand dollars.

1.12 Falls at O'Neill.

Soaking rains covered north Nebraska over the week end, particularly Sunday night, with the fall measuring up to 7.5 inches at Niobrara. Northwestern railroad tracks were washed out twice Sunday night near Stanton.

By Mary Gordon.

Dear Mary Gordon: There's excellent advice for your girl readers in Redbook. Being a little old-fashioned helps a girl get her man even in these days; and the most important weapons are tenacity and ingenuity, declares Alice-Leone Moats, New York society girl and writer. Telling in detail what to do from the time you see him, she writes: "Meeting a man is obviously the first step. It shouldn't be too difficult to create occasions for enlarging a hunting ground. A job, travel, sports, charity work, are all avenues open to anyone. In order to meet men, the cagey girl first enlarges her feminine acquaintance. It is shortsighted to overlook other women They can be useful, not only for the social support they give you, but also because they have brothers, uncles, cousins, beaux with friends, or husbands with business acquaintances And it is they who give the parties.

"Even if the moral side of the question doesn't interfere with your sleep, be swayed by practical considerationgand resist the temptation of poaching on a friend's preserves.

"Since it is more difficult to meet one certain man that just any man, the procedure for the first includes all the points useful in the second. Every girl has, at some time, had the experience of catching sight of what looked like a dream prince; with no apparent means of wangling an introduction. A man can come right out and announce that he wants to meet a girl he has fallen for from a distance. People are saill shocked at the spectacle of a girl in full and obvious pursuit of her quarry. Confiding, even to your best friend, that you admire the handsome stranger from afar is a practically sure means of never meeting him—or, if you do, of finding him on his guard. It is a safe bet that your remark will be repeated to him and make him cautious. You can tell him yourself when you meet him. Then, oddly enough, it's good technique. 'You know, I used to have a terrible crush on you,' is a sure-fire opening gambit. That seems a little too frank to be quite true, but he will want to believe it.

"With no other course open, there is always the haunting technique. This consists in appearing everywhere that dream boy may possibly be Seeing the same face again and again, even in a crowd, will eventually make some impression. His curiosity will finally get the better of him, and after that, you can count on him to make all the necessary arrangements for an introduction. If Mr. Right is a golf or tennis player, there is nothing for you to do but take up golf or tennis. If he is bookish, you can spend your time banging around the public library of his favorite bookshop. If he likes bridge, plumb the mysteries of the Culbertson system. Be prepared to develop an interest in anything that interest him—from amateur theatricals to debating societies, to politics, to trout-fishing, to the Ballet Russe. Or you certainly lack imagination if you can't plot out a means of approaching him in a business way. When all else fails, you can always be writing a paper on some subject on which he is an expert

"The main thing is to get on a personal footing right away. He isn't going to remember you if your only conversation was a little muttering about the weather. One girl we know has found palmistry unfailing. Taking a man's hand and telling him about himself invariably seems to work 'You are a very sensitive person,' she will say. After that, all she has to do is sit back and listen to him tell her all about just how sensitive he is. Having bared his innermost soul to her, he feels that they are old friends after the first half hour. And it has double value because she gets enough dope on him to be able to figure her next move accurately."—Henrietta.

SANDERSON TO HEAD CHEST DIVISION 'A'

Again Chairman of Large Gifts Solicitation in October Campaign.

With the reappointment of Sewall A. Sanderson, vice president of Rudge & Guenzel, as chairman of Division A for the Community Chest campaign, organization of the campaign, which opens Oct. 3, was officially under way. Announcement was made by Ted A. Sick, chairman of this year's chest drive.

S. A. Sanderson.

The A section is known as the big gifts division, and its responsibility is the solicitation of gifts of $100 or more. Since it raises over half the total funds, it is one of the most important units of the organization. Last year 301 individuals contributed $83,452.50.

Working in the campaign are six divisions, which solicited all together a total of $162,872.73 from 16,367 contributors last year. In announcingthe appointment of Mr. Sanderson to serve for a second year, Mr. Sick said plans for the campaign were progressing and other division chairmen would be announced within the next few days.

Regarding Mr. Sanderson's work, he said: "The Chest is extremely fortunate in having Mr. Sanderson serve after his having rendered such valuable service in the same capacity during last year's campaign."

BISCHOF, KLINE IN NEW DISAGREEMENT

Deposed Treasurer Eastern Nebraska Power District Wouldn't Sign Check.

NEBRASKA CITY, (UP). A fresh outbreak has occurred between William Bischof, jr., of Nebraska City and George Kline of Lincoln, director and secretary respectively of the Eastern Nebraska public power district.

The board of directors, at a meeting last week in Syracuse, deposed Bischof as district treasurer and elected R. L. Jobes, an unsuccessful candidate for the board at the primary election, to succeed him. Bischof asserted he would not relinquish his duties until after investigation by the rural electrification administration. He said the action was taken because he refused to sign a $57 check payable to Kline for expenses.

"I found that the expense incurred by Kline in running around the district wasn't justified and I wouldn't sign the check," Bischof said. "Then the Kline faction proceeded to elect a new treasurer."

Bischof said an effort was made to unseat him at a previous meeting, but the action was delayed. He declared the board had been advised to postpone the election until Boyd Fisher, REA official in Washington, could be consulted.

W. B. Banning of Union, president of the state fair board, and E. E. Placek, Wahoo manufacturer and banker, protested Bischof's ouster in a telegram to Fisher. They asked REA to order the Tecumseh bank to refuse payment of the district's checks not signed by Bischof.

To Relieve
BABY'S HEAD COLD Misery

DO THIS: Massage his throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him into bed. Next, put a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; place a newspaper or sheet over the child's head like a tent, covering the bowl too, so the medicated vapors can be inhaled for several minutes. This treatment loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion. Long after he relaxes into peaceful sleep, VapoRub's poultice-and-vapor action is still bringing relief—and you can get a good night's rest too.

CHECK AAA COMPLIANCE WITH AIR PHOTOGRAPHS

Aerial Mapping of All Farms in Nation to Replace Land Surveying

WASHINGTON (AP) Uncle Sam is getting a bird's eye view of three fourths of the nation's farm land from airplanes flying three miles high

Photographs made from the planes are being prepared for the agricultural adjustment administration as a means of determining which farmers have complied with its cotton corn wheat tobacco and other crop control programs Only those farmers who comply are eligible for more than $700 000 000 in federal benefit payments to be distributed during the next 12 months

AAA officials say that by the end of the year they expect to have aerial photographs of 1 350 000 square miles of farm land These pictures if fitted together would form a map almost as large as the states of Connecticut and Rhode Island combined Present plans call for complete photographs by 1940 of all the nation's farms comprising an area of about 1 650 000 square miles

Aerial mapping started in 1936 is taking the place of the old method of land surveying to determine farmer compliance with AAA programs

Hearing of the complaint of the village of Raymond against the Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power company, over wholesale rates charged to it has been set by the railway commission for Oct. 3.

J. A. Lococo dismissed in supreme court Monday his appeal from the judgment secured in Lancaster county for $2,500 by Ruth Johnson, who sued as a guest passenger for injuries received in a car accident last December, near Marysville, Kas.

The hearing before the railway commission of protests of the Nebraska Power company against allowing the Eastern Nebraska Public Power district to invade territory in Cass and Saunders counties that it claims to adequately serve has been continued from Sept. 16 to Sept. 22, to enable President Roy Page to appear in person.

E. L. Smith, president of the National Association of eRtail Clothiers, will address a meeting of the Hastings chamber of commerce retail trade division Monday evening. Other Lincoln men who will attend the meeting are. John Lawlor, Joe Fenton and Harry J. Kiusz. George Overturf, Hastings chamber secretary, is in charge of the meeting.

A goal of 500 season tickets for the Lincoln high school gridiron schedule is the goal set by the junior chamber of commerce committee which is sponsoring the campaign among the business men. Proceeds from the ticket sale will be used, Fred Wiren, campaign chairman, said, to buy new uniforms for the football squad.

Rail Commissioner Good issued an order Monday to all bus companies operating in the state to show cause why an order should not be issued limiting the weight and size of packages carried by them in connection with their passenger business. It is claimed that some companies are accepting bundles and packages of a size and weight that endangers safe operation of the motor vehicle.

Both the birth and death rates took a jump upward in Lincoln during the month of August, health department figures reveal. There were 121 births, 140.6 per 100,000 population, compared to 105 births and a rate of 122 in July. Deaths increased from 74 to 91, the rate per 100,000 from 86 to 105.8. Exactly the same number 91, died here in Aug. 1937. Eighteen non-residents died in Lincoln during the past month.

The railway commission has instructed Atty. Vail and Rate Expert Little to attend the hearing in Chicago on Sept. 26 of the western district livestock rates case, with particular attention to feeder rates. From there Mr. Vail goes to Washington to represent the commission in the hearing of the application of the Rock Island railroad company to abandon that part of its line between Nelson and Nora.

State Auditor Price reported Monday that during August he issued a total of 18,062 warrants calling for the expenditure of $3,372,656 as compared with 17,100 warrants for a total of $3,319,857 for the preceding month. Of this sum $520,747 came out of the general fund for state offices, educational institutions and the board of control; $377,767 from the gasoline tax fund; $511,158 from federal assistance, $89,388 for state assistance, $410,551 from federal aid road fund; $105,896 from university cash; $78,014 from motor vehicle licenses, and $65,021 from institutions cash.

Cora A. Smith, who won in Madison county when sued by the Falstaff Brewing corporation on a contract whereby she guaranteed payment of the account of her husband, Frank E. Smith, told the supreme court Monday that as she had no intention of binding her separate estate, the fact that the plaintiff sold goods on the faith and credit of her separate estate does not, as a matter of law, require her to pay her husband's debt. She operates a dress shop, and said she signed the papers just before leaving home at her husband's request and on his assurance that it was only a matter of form.

A delegation of hay producers from Stuart conferred Monday with Railway Commissioner Good, only member on duty, with respect to a readjustment of rail rates. The complaint is that Stuart, an important shipping point, is discriminated against in favor of Atkinson, Newport and Bassett in the present grouping of shipping points by the Northwestern railroad company. The complainants conferred Monday afternoon with representatives of the company, and were told by Mr. Good that if the situation cannot there be ironed out, the commission will take action on its own initiative.

Attorneys for Mary Haley asked the supreme court Monday to affirm the judgment for $2,400 she obtained in Lancaster county against W. C. Deer, who operates a restaurant at 9th and O. She had gone into the place to use a pay telephone, and fell thru an open trapdoor while on her way to a toilet. She was badly lacerated and lost an ear. Her attorneys rest their case mainly on two propositions of law, that she had the legal status of one who had been invited into the place to use a public pay station maintained by the proprietor, who derived profit from toll receipts, and that she retained this status going or returning from a toilet maintained for the use of customers They say she was a customer in the eyes of the law, and that Deer owed a wider duty than merely refraining from injuring her.

interests in the world but they must understand that Germany also wants to safeguard her interests under all circumstances.

"They deplore the cruelty with which Jews are treated in Italy and Germany," Hitler continued. "Italy and Germany are overpopulated and no longer willing to let themselves be explointed by thoes parasites.

"eYt the democracies declare they cannot admit Jews to their countries, altho they have only a few people to the square mile."

Then Hitler turned to the question of Czechoslovakia.

Hitler declared there is a conspiracy between democracy and bolshevism against the nazi movement but that Germany "has formed a united front against them

"Just as the Marxists have joined with Catholics and capitalists against our country," he declared, "so the so-called democracies again are working hand in hand with bolshevism."

The nazi party, however, he declared, is united and today hardly a German does not belong to some nazi organization

"They include even German citizens in foreign countries," he said

Says Party Unified.

Citing the solidarity of the party he said: "The party is sovereign in power and may adopt even unpopular measures if necessary."

"Today we see how the international democrats who pretend to fight for freedom and equality, co-operate with the bolshevists. We are compelled to deal with the democrats because their behavior is essentially outrageous.

"They say they represent the people However, I dare say there are only two governments behind which 99 percent of the people stand.

"Yet they call nations where 99 percent of the people support the government dictatorships."

Hitler acclaimed Italy's racial policies against the Jews, the "parasites of the world." The same forces are at work again as 15 years ago, he said, but Germany refused to be robbed.

Hitler traced the party's history, remarking, "many believed such a party was unsuited to solving the higher tasks," and then went on to cite the successive nazi achievements Castigated the old time German marxists, whose aim was "to establish a state such as we see in soviet Russia—98 percent Aryan workers and 2 percent Jewish commissars."

In the old days, Hitler said, the German nationalists were suspicious of the nazi movement.

"They believed the party would not be able to determine its own policy because it was a workers' party and lacked intellectual leadership," he said "They waited for the moment when the 'drummer,' namely myself, would be replaced by a 'real statesman'."

Referring to the nazis of years ago, Hitler said "What was then the flag of a small group is now the flag of 75,000,000 people in this reich alone."

Referring to the early persecution of the nazis, he declared, "A factor recalling those times to us is that similar events go on in the world scene today. Our political enemies today are the same."

Hitler referring to the manner in which the national socialists united masses of people, declared this unity had to be extended to all groups

"That is the reason why the foreign element which could never be fused into a nation namely the Jews, had to be eliminated," Hitler said.

The French felt they had done all within their power to preserve peace but were ready for whatever might come.

LONDON. (UP). Czechoslovakia presented Great Britain with a complete outline of her position in the Sudeten dispute, and was understood to have stated plainly that she will not accept a plebiscite.

PARIS. (UP). U. S. Abassador Bullitt conferred with Foreign Minister Bonnet as the French cabinet assembled to review once again France's military and political preparedness

"It is insupportable if the motto of democracy is used as a threat against us in a country where millions of Germans apparently are defenseless," he declared. "I speak of Czechoslovakia."

"This state is a democracy and it was established against the will of a majority of its inhabitants."

Hitler remarked sarcastically.

"Czechoslovakia was destined to bomb German industries in case of war. It is an explosive with a civilizing task...TheCzech constitution is based not on nation's rights but on the requirements of oppressors.

"It proclaims the supremacy of the Czechs. All those who protest against this pretense are enemies of the state.'

Charges Intimidation.

Referring to the recent Czech municipal elections, he said the Czechs planned to intimidate the Sudetens by massing Czech troops at the frontier

He declared that in order to be able to do this, President Benes invented a story that German troops were mobilized to march on Czechoslovakia.

Hitler declared the story was a lie and the fabrication was immediately refuted but the Czechs wanted it spread as an excuse for intimidation.

"I declare that at the time not one soldier above the normal number was called to the colors or moved out of garrisons," Hitler avowed.

"Germany had no intention of marching," he continued. "You understand that a great power cannot tolerate such a base attack a second time. I therefore drew the necessary conclusions and took important measures on May 28

"First, I ordered the German air force strengthened and secondly ordered fortifications built.

"The fortification already effective. today will include 18,000 steel and concrete units. Behind this line stands an armed Germany....

"Since May 28, the most gigantic fortifications have been built in the west. The fortifications will be ready before winter.

Tried to Serve Peace.

"I have made repeated efforts to serve peace," Hitler declared. "But I am unwilling to look on endlessly while Germans in Czechoslovakia are oppressed Benes engaged in tactics and desires to negotiate under the methods of Geneva. That will not do. This is no question of violated rights."

Hitler declared the Sudeten Germans have the right of self determination," altho he did not indicate whether the method is to be by plebiscite or otherwise.

"Herr Benes," he said, "you have not to give the Sudeten Germans gifts but to recognize their rights. I serve peace if I leave no doubt that the oppression of Sudeten Germans is to end."

"I would be sorry if our relations with other European nations suffered, but the guilt is not ours," Hitler continued.

"I am not willing to permit a second Palestine in the heart of Germany. The Arabs are defenseless but the Sudeten Germans are neither defenseless nor forsaken."

Hitler closed his address with a declaration that under the nazi regime national pride had been strengthened.

"Go home," he shouted, "and tell the world that you have regained your national pride again."

MOST ANXIOUS DAY

cautions were considerably more extensive than the government's quiet manner would indicate. Most obvious was the massing at Invergordon of the largest war fleet in waters off northern Scotland since the World war.

Hitler told 13,000 officers and men of the German army, air force and marines: "You have the best weapons existing today, you are getting the best training and I know you have the best character." He spoke only seven minutes at the rally, the last before his speech concluding the congress.

For the first time he appeared without his trusted lieutenant, Field Marshal Goering. Goering was taken suddenly ill and ordeerd to quit all activity for several days

Sudetens Demonstrate.

Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia demonstrated with renewed fervor in many towns and cities They demanded a plebiscite and appeared to be raising an issue of "saving Czechoslovakia from communism."

A government broadcast appealed again to the people to remain calm and maitnain order. Officials reiterated Czechoslovakia's desire for peace but warned, "The forts are manned."

Cabinet meetings were clled in London and Paris. British ministers were in session more than two hours.

They were said to feel they had taken every possible step to convince Germany that Britain would fight if France's integrity were menaced.

FOURTH OF INCOME

Nebraska taxpayer—tho possibly not from the view point of the recipient of governmental service—the most encouraging aspect of the tax situation," Dr. Shumate commented, "is that the per capita cost of state and local government (exclusive of federal) in the state is well below the national average —$46 27 in Nebraska, as compared with $65.95 for the whole nation."

The report listed these factors

(1) Number of governmental units—the more local units, the higher the cost of government and the heavier the tax burden

(2) Unequal assessments—the system of assessments in Nebraska performed by county assessors who rarely have special training for their task, and 1,900 "untrained and unco-ordinated" precinct assessors, "gives little assurance of complete equity."

Much Property Exempt.

(3) Tax exemptions—From $350,000,000 to $100,000,000, or 10 to 15 percent, of all tangible property in the state is exempt from taxation, such as that owned by the various governmental units And certain types of organizations, in addition, a considerable amount of intangibles is exempt, the exact sum being unavailable

(4) Tax evasions—"Thru clerical errors, oversight on part of the assessors, connivance between owners and assessing authorities, or other means, there is always a certain amount of taxable real estate that escapes the tax rolls altogether The tax in Nebraska which is probably most flagrantly evaded is that on intangibles . . . secreted in vaults, safety deposit boxes, in the home, and elsewhere."

(5) Tax delinquency—"More than $40,000,000 in delinquent property taxes is carried on the books of the state and its subdivisions We may be certain a portion is always irretrievably lost, and as a result the man who pays his taxes is paying part of those of the man who does not pay."

(6) Bonded indebtedness—While the Nebraska constitution forbids the incurring of bonded indebtedness by the state, the aggregate bonded debt of communities as of June 30 1938, was $70 899 630 or slightly less than $52 per capita "The fact that local indebtedness is being steadily reduced is distinctly encouraging from the taxpayers point of view."

Units For Taxing.

How many governmental units are there in Nebraska? No one seems to know for sure and no two records agree, Dr. R. V. Shumate discovered. From the jumble, however, he drew out the number 8,469—distributed as follows:

One national government.
One state.
Ninety three counties.
Four hundred seventy-five townships
Five hundred and thirty cities and villages
Seven thousand two hundred and nine school districts
Eighty drainage districts
Thirty-six irrigation districts
Thirty-eight public power districts.
Three bindweed districts.
One water district.
One river control district
One storage reservoir district.

STATE WAGNER ACT

his opinion "it is absolutely imperative" to employ a full time officer and establish a permanent office in Lincoln "as soon as possible."

The convention opened, with President Ed eHrman of the Norfolk central labor union presiding. Addresses of welcome were given by City Attorney Lynn D. Hutton, Clarence Isaacson, president of the Norfolk chamber of commerce, and Congressman Stefan. An address of appreciation was given by M. L. Bowman, Hastings, second vice president of the federation.

Gov. Cochran was to speak at the afternoon session following the report of the committee on rules. Resolutions were to be read, fraternal delegates introduced and an address given by a representative of the National Kindergarten association.

Gov. Cochran also will attend the convention banquet Monday night.

Gov. Cochran warned labor "against acceptance and belief in false promises" for aid to the needy

"Labor is able to identify the panaceas offered by the wily politicians as just so much bunk," the governor said. "I have no quarrel with the man who makes promises based on a program that is possible of fulfillment I dislike to think of an aspirant for public office playing upon the sympathies of those in distress."

In references to Charles W Bryan, considered a certain candidate by petition for a fourth term as governor, Cochran said:

"There are those, who for political reasons, promise great things for labor....and the distressed. I refer to men who have held office for a considerable period of years and who have been in a position to show their friendliness toward such a program. Yet the record fails to disclose where they ever did anything about it"

tee of seven members arrived here to demand a conference with the operators at which the wage scale agreed upon at an 11-state parley in Chicago and Indianapolis will be asked.

Chairman of the union committee is Farrell Dobbs, Minneapolis Other members include J. M. O'Loughlin, Detroit; Jack Maloney, Sioux City, John A. Ray, St. Louis and Thomas V. Smith, Omaha. The subcommittee is to ask for the reopening of negotiations broken off last June. The operators also were meeting and it was indicated they will not be in position to meet the employes before Tuesday.

Reports from Kansas City indicated dissatisfaction on the part of midwestern operators with the Chicago agreement, which calls for hourly wages 25 to 50 percent higher than is being paid in this section. Union leaders, however, declared they would accept nothing but a unified wage scale. It is reported there are splits in both the ranks of the men and of the operators.

spoke of the need for a well rounded program, including a large portion of study mixed with the spice of extra curricular activities. The object of education, he said, is to attain "wide knowledge, disciplined intelligence and discriminating taste."

Speaking in a lively, direct fashion, Chancellor Boucher told of his own freshman days, "25 years ago or more," and recalled that much of the freshmen's time was spent climbing trees to by "squirrel food" at the behest of the sophomores. There have been many changes, he pointed out, and the freshman of today is guided in the right paths instead of hindered and misinformed.

Dr. Boucher warned against attempts to cheat the instructor "You can't cheat the instructor out of anything," he said. "The only one you can cheat is yourself." The teacher should be looked on as "guide, counsellor and friend in this business of educating yourself." There is a direct correlation between scholarship records and records of achievement in later life.

Heads Introduced.

Before Chancellor Boucher's address, cheerleaders led the new students in songs and cheers. Dr. E. S. Fullbrook, chairman of the freshman convocation committee and profesor of marketing, introduced deans and other school officials, university pastors and Y secretaries. Harold Benn, president of the Student Council, gave advice from the student standpoint.

Following the convocation, the students adjourned to reassemble at various college convocations, where they heard talks by professors and college heads and received instructions and advice concerning registration. Preliminary registration was held in the afternoon. Actual registration will be Tuesday and Wednesday, with classes beginning Thursday morning.

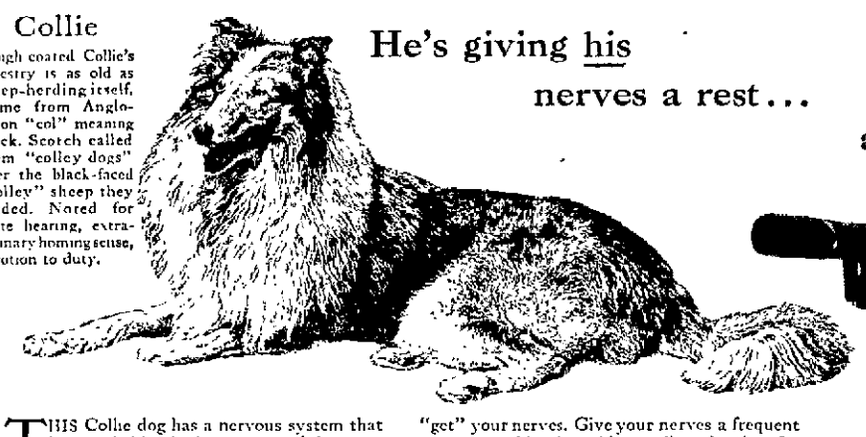
DON'T LET TENSION "GET" YOUR NERVES!

Collie

Rough coated Collie's ancestry is as old as sheep-herding itself. Name from Anglo-Saxon "col" meaning black. Scotch called them "colley dogs" after the black-faced "colley" sheep they tended. Noted for acute hearing, extraordinary homing sense, devotion to duty.



He's giving his nerves a rest...

and so is he

THIS Collie dog has a nervous system that is remarkably similar to yours. Like yours it is delicate, complicated. But here is where a big difference comes in: The dog can spring into flashing action—and then relax. While man's nature makes him unkind to his nerves. All too often, we work too hard, worry too much, are fatigued or sleepless from strain. Nerves cry for rest, but we do not hear. Don't let tension "get" your nerves. Give your nerves a frequent rest—a soothing breathing spell—take time for a Camel. Camels help you to remember that you need a brief bit of leisure, for they are mild and mellow, a supremely enjoyable cigarette, made from costlier tobaccos. Smokers find that "Let up—light up a Camel" puts more joy into living, and that Camel's costlier tobaccos are mild and soothing to their nerves.

There's more joy in living when you "Let up—light up a Camel"

RALPH GULDAHL (right), golf champion, reveals an "inside" story. "I've learned to ease up now and again—to take time for a Camel. It's the little breaks in daily nerve tension that help to keep a fellow on top. Smoking a Camel gives me a feeling of well being. Here is a cigarette that is soothing to my nerves!"

MISS OLLIE TUCKER (left), office manager, says: "I can't afford to get nervous. My method is to let up, and light up a Camel. It's a grand way to smooth out tense nerves. I smoke Camels a lot. They're so mild and flavory. Camels are soothing to my nerves. Most of my friends who seem always at ease prefer Camels."

DID YOU KNOW:

That there are 26 different types of American-grown tobacco, by U. S government standards? That Camel buyers study soil conditions, weather, local curing methods? They know where the choice grades are. It is a recognized fact in the tobacco trade that

"Dedicated to the people of Nebraska and to the development of the resources of the state."—Sept 1, 1867

There is no place like Nebraska.

PRIMARY AMENDMENTS.

Dwight Griswold enters the discussion relating to changes in the Nebraska primary law. He believes there should be amendments to the present law, but he does not want to see the law "ruined." It is his idea that the law works all right on local offices, and on the more important offices, such as senator, congressman and governor. The weakness lies in naming candidates for the minor state offices, such as lieutenant governor, auditor and railway commissioner. He holds that the voters have no real opportunity to learn the qualifications of these candidates and that they vote for familiar names without knowledge of the persons who are named. For that reason, he says, the Marshes, Swansons, Prices and Johnsons always win in a divided field. He believes that the law should be amended to remedy this.

Mr. Griswold, who has had more experience with primaries than the average run of candidates, believes that the short ballot plan, if adopted, will remove most of the evils. With a very few candidates on the ballot it would be easier to get the people interested in those who seek the offices.

If the short ballot plan is turned down by the voters, Mr. Griswold believes the law should be amended so that candidates for minor officers will be forced to pass under the scrutiny of the delegates to the state convention. He suggests a plan by which any candidate receiving 10 or 15 percent of the convention vote would be entitled to have his name placed on the ticket. He believes this plan would eliminate any charge of machine rule.

Mr. Griswold believes that on the major offices, even tho the voters may make mistakes, they make them with their eyes open and there is no remedy for that. "The principle of the primary law must be retained," says Mr. Griswold. "The voters will insist upon it. In its operation on the minor offices we think they will be glad to make some changes."

Discussion of the primary law is in order. Amendments will be urged with considerable force when the legislature meets. Mr. Griswold and others have performed a public service in making pertinent suggestions concerning amendments.

PRACTICAL POLITICS.

Vote totals from Kentucky's democratic primaries were reported long ago Some people may have acquired the idea that the primary in that state was over, because it was announced that Senator Barkley has been renominated and Governor Chandler had been defeated.

Nevertheless, returns are still coming in from the primary in that state. They are returns on political practices. The senate campaign committee has been investigating expenditures for political purposes in Kentucky, as well as the sources of campaign assessments and contributions. It has found that Governor Chandler expended over $71,000 in promoting his candidacy from money collected from state employes. More than $7,000 of this amount was collected from employes of the old age assistance division of the state welfare department. A number of employes of this department spent several months actively campaigning for the governor. An assessment of approximately 2 percent was levied on the employes of the unemployment compensation commission of the state. More than $4,000 was collected from the personnel of the welfare department. More than $56,000 was collected from employes of the highway department.

The report, however, is only half complete. It does not report the sources of campaign funds used in support of Senator Barkley. In fact, the committee expresses itself as disappointed because Harry Hopkins has made no report on his investigation of charges of political activity by WPA officials. The country is still awaiting a report from the WPA administrator on the effect of that administration on the Kentucky vote.

Practical political methods were not neglected by either the Barkley or Chandler managers.

TRIBUTE TO GENIUS.

On Sunday afternoon, as a part of Everybody's Music, one of the unusual features of the airlanes this summer, there was rendered a symphony written by an easterner.

Commenting on the piece, before its presentation, the program commentator said that it did not paint a picture or tell a story. It was simply a symphony, a piece of music which clearly and plainly stated a musical theme at the beginning, and elaborated on it as the piece progressed.

The idea of no picture or story sounded interesting. To the lay listener the pictures painted and the stories told in symphonies are often far too vague. They distress the listener. He tries to see waving palm trees and desert sands, or restless oceans and rippling streams, all in vain. Even tho he does make out the rippling stream he is unable to detect the splash of mermaids as they disport themselves in the cool, crystal water.

After listening to this symphony, however, the layman got the idea that perhaps the composer would have done better to have painted a picture—with a brush.

It was not symphony but cacophony. It was dull, uninspired and uninspiring, with a sort of fire siren motif and a boiler factory background. Whether or not the composer was trying to be ultra modern he achieved that effect.

When we consider that here is a serious attempt by a composer to write a symphony, an effort that required much time from a music teacher of considerable repute, a man with a lifelong musical background and a competent musical education, and the result is so indifferent, we begin to appreciate the genius of Beethoven, Brahms, Bach and the other masters of symphonic music.

It is difficult to appraise what we have in their work until we are permitted a hearing of a sympathetic rendition by competent musicians (Howard Barlow, conductor, and the Columbia symphony orchestra) of a serious attempt of a presumably competent musician and composer, to write in their particular field.

THE MISSES AMERICA.

The perils of judging a baby contest are well known. The fond mother is never inclined to accept as final the judgment of any board of judges which fails to recognize her child as the most beautiful in the lot. Judging a bathing beauty contest is scarcely less hazardous. The irate mothers are no longer a menace. It is the contestant herself who is convinced, regardless of the judges' opinion, that she is the most strikingly beautiful and charming thing that ever displayed a bare back and shapely calves to the paying customers.

The young woman who represented California at the Atlantic City pageant has given an excellent display of temper as the result of an adverse decision. After a terrific buildup she was finally rated second and left the scene in a huff to go to New York where Earl Carroll, who has made a name for himself as connoisseur of bathtub beauty, crowned her Miss America on his own responsibility.

The net result is that the country now boasts two Miss Americas for 1938. One is the Atlantic City Miss America and the other is the California product who was awarded a hastily fabricated crown in New York, in an individual contest.

To this America will say, "Well and good." What this country needs is more Miss Americas. A Miss America in every home will not be amiss. In fact, some are willing to go so far as to say that every youthful American girl is Miss America. There are better looking girls on the streets of Lincoln that have entered the nation's beauty pageants.

More and more Miss Americas is an idea worth considering.

With France's army mobilized on a war footing and in positions along the border and Germany's armed forces just across the line, we are just beginning to realize what a terrific August war binge Europe had this year, judging by the intensity and extent of the September hangover.

It is announced with a degree of finality that Britain will not remain quiet if France is menaced. That has long been a foregone conclusion. Britain needs France as a buffer. Britain's fate is hopelessly bound up with that of France regardless of anyone's wishes in the matter.

Politically minded Americans, regardless of party affiliation, are going to be wary of Maine as a political barometer. Maine will be watched carefully, but no great stock can be safely taken in the results as a portend of future trends.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL.

For the information of Correspondent Hahn and others interested it may be stated that the expenses of operating the state government are lower now than in the biennium of 1931-33—$12,629,000 as compared with $14,523,000—and that these total costs shift back and forth as emergency demands come up or are absent, and as legislators feel generous or otherwise toward the university and the state institutions in the matter of buildings. Hence there is no inconsistency between the statements of those who have been emphasizing this in advertisements and the fact that the total appropriations by the legislature have increased. No money going into the state treasury can be expended without an appropriation by the legislature, and hence the appropriations bill contains directions as to what shall be done with all the federal moneys and the revenues from special taxes like gasoline and liquor taxes. The larger these receipts are the larger the appropriations bill. They have been much larger in recent years.

The rain gods have been unusually kind the last two weeks toward those home owners who prefer green to brown lawns and who have been reseeding them during that period. The newer lawns, as a matter of course, show quicker and greater response to favorable weather conditions and were not much damaged the past summer because of normal rainfall, even tho a scarcity in August caused injury. With old lawns the process is to first put on chemical fertilizer, wet it down, and then a few days later seed and cover with peat moss. This must be kept wet, and this year blue grass sprouts have shown inside of six days after planting. Copious watering should bring excellent results within the month, with the fall rains helping out.

Educators say that the needs of the schools of Nebraska are forcing them to get behind a sales or income tax, both of which past legislatures have fought shy of levying. One of the chief complaints is the salary schedule, which is so low as compared with other states as to cause many Nebraska teachers to accept employment in other states. Supt. Allen P. Burkhardt of the Norfolk schools said recently that 9 of the 21 teachers who resigned during the summer left to accept employment in other states that paid them from 25 to 35 percent more. As the limit of property taxes is now fixed and in most cases is almost reached, some other source of revenue must be secured, he added.

The Auburn Herald recalls that the earliest settlers of Brownville, many of whom arrived there by boat, dreamed of a bridge across the river at that place. The Herald says, "It is almost as difficult for the people of today to envision what the bridge will really mean when it is completed and put to use." It points out that the benefits will be widespread, helping a large territory on both sides of the river.

The Norfolk News rather doubts whether Edgar Howard, candidate for congress in the Third district, is a 100 percent Roosevelt ian. It says: "However, we still insist that until Edgar Howard stands ready to take the 'political immorality' out of the Nebraska primary law, he can't qualify as more than, say, a 98 percenter."

A farmer with a bundle of papers under his arm asked Deputy Supreme Court Clerk White the other day where he could find the judge who wrote the court's opinions. He explained that he had three cases pending in the district court of his home county, that he had lost one of them and the other two were shortly to come up for hearing. He said he wanted to talk with the supreme judges to find out, from inspecting his papers, whether they thought he would have a chance to win if he appealed his cases. He was perfectly sincere about it, too.

"In many European cities the use of automobile horns has been completely forbidden because they are considered needless, and annoying to the public. In others there are various restrictions as to when they can be used, by what type of vehicle, and in what districts," Dr. Miles Breuer writes. "We should be better off in Lincoln, if the use of automobile horns were completely forbidden," he continues. "Have you ever had a terrific blast wake you up at 2 a. m. only to find it produced by the exuberance of the young fellow bringing home from a party the girl who lives across the street? Without the uproar produced by these automobile signals, we would have better traffic, safer streets, less accidents, quieter nerves, more efficient people in our offices, and more cheerful people reaching home in the evening. Let us try driving with our brains instead of with our horns."

FOOTNOTES.

In a recent interview, Vicente Villamin, Filipino journalist and lawyer, expressed the opinion that the defeat of the Roosevelt endorsed candidates will strengthen the third term movement for the president. Stressing that he is strictly neutral, tho not indifferent, in American political affairs, Villamin explained that in setting forth his ideas he is "not indulging in wishful thinking but merely stating what I think is the logical trend."

Villamin's statement follows:

"President Roosevelt still has the confidence of the great mass of the American people. I saw a demonstration of it last July when I traveled with him as a journalist from Washington to California.

"I don't know how strong is the tradition against a third term, but I felt that, tradition or no tradition, President Roosevelt could again be elected to the presidency. I want to stress here that I am saying this strictly as a neutral observer and without the slightest desire to pass on its wisdom or unwisdom.

"In my opinion an increasing number of Americans, who voted for and are still in favor of President Roosevelt, now contemplate with mixed anxiety the great and overwhelming power that the presidency has acquired.

"Perhaps their trust in President Roosevelt would reconcile them to what may be called the new presidency. But as good Americans they believe in the perpetuation of democratic government and, it seems to me, are getting more and more disturbed when they think of the example which President Roosevelt may leave behind him after his term of office.

"Thus the defeat of the Roosevelt endorsed candidates in the current campaign in various states is, in effect, a victory for that Roosevelt whom his most sincere and intelligent friends so silently but sincerely want him to be, for that would be the Roosevelt to allay the fear of a president-dictator, the Roosevelt that would not be too disproportionately strong for the rest of the federal government.

"If President Roosevelt's two word political benediction, 'My friend,' had proved sufficient in itself to elect a candidate to congress, then well may the American people pause and appraise the direction which their government is taking. The new presidency then would be an actual fact, a force that could sweep court, congress and constitution into the discard.

"Therefore, my conclusion is that a third term for President Roosevelt will become less unacceptable to many good and patriotic Americans as a result of the primary electoral contests in which the voters demonstrated that they still are sovereign citizens. And the good natured manner in which President Roosevelt has received their verdict shows that he does not deem himself the people's mentor or dictator but their servant.

"Again I want to say that what I have just said is merely the opinion of an observer who is severely neutral in American politics."

With a third dog one of the two dogs meets,
With angry teeth he bites him to the bone,
And this dog smarts for what that dog has done.

DAVID LAWRENCE.

WASHINGTON.—"Political morality" was a term recently used by President Roosevelt and it implies that there is some sort of code of decency in politics and in government. Sometimes the code touches dishonesty and graft, sometimes it touches everyday ethics and sometimes it merely touches good taste.

The question of what classification should be made of the latest pronouncement from the head of the public works administration on the eve of the Maryland primary election is one that each person will no doubt wish to make for himself when the facts are presented. Here are the facts:

The PWA is supposed to be a nonpolitical institution. Graft in favoring this or that contractor is tabooed. Favors are not supposed to be dispensed on any political basis but on merit alone. If the people of a state want a bridge, the decision is not supposed to be made on whether the voters are pro or antiadministration, but on whether the project is sound from an engineering standpoint and is truly in the public interest.

If Chairman Farley of the democratic national committee were to say to the PWA administrator, "I want you to put so and so in charge of this project or I want you to approve a spending program of several millions in this particular state," Mr. Ickes is supposed, under a truly ethical regime, to tell genial Jim that politics has no place in the PWA and that public office is a public trust.

The PWA is flooded with requests for construction projects. They must go thru a certain routine before they are approved. Competent persons presumably are employed in the regional offices of the PWA who are not supposed to allow political emergencies to influence their judgment in handling office business. Yet out of the pile of hundreds of bridge projects thruout the country, Secy. Ickes chooses two in Maryland to push ahead of the rest of the very eve of a primary election in Maryland in which he and the president have publicly declared themselves as partisans of a particular candidate.

Up to now, charges have been made that the administration has used federal employes on the WPA and federal officeholders generally for vote getting purposes but as for the PWA the trail of political scandal has not been dragged so conspicuously before across the fine reputation of Secy. Harold Ickes.

Mr. Ickes was a "liberal republican" before he lapsed into new dealism. He has been rightly nicknamed "Honest Harold" because nobody can justly point a finger of criticism of impropriety or personal profit against him in all these years that he has handled billions of dollars of public funds. But he has succumbed finally to the wiles of the politicians.

If he were still a "liberal republican," possessed of the same fiery passion for true liberalism that he used to have, he would today be outside the administration denouncing the exploitation of the electorate by the use of public funds. He would be condemning it as unworthy of a free people. He would be using up all the invectives in the vocabulary of satire and ridicule.

The friends and admirers of Mr. Ickes, among whom this correspondent counts himself, will be loath to believe that Mr. Ickes has of his own accord adopted the Tammany type of political strategy. The text of his statement would seem to indicate that maybe somebody "higher up" forced his hand. The announcement about the Maryland bridges was in the form of a telegram from Mr. Ickes to Col. Maurice Gilmore, the PWA regional director in New York, which said:

"The president has sent me a memorandum from New York directing that prompt attention be paid to the applications for the bridges at Havre de Grace across the Susquehanna river and over the Potomac near Morgantown. I understand that these applications with accompanying dockets are still in regional office. Please give them right of way as to examination and forward with your recommendations at your earliest convenience."

It may be asked what the matter is with Col. Gilmore? Didn't he know that President Roosevelt himself made a speech last week at the site of the Morgantown bridge and referred to it as a measure of "national defense"? Doesn't he realize there's a political emergency in Maryland and papers like this must be given right of way? Perhaps the PWA subordinates don't know that national defense and political defense may be synonymous in a contest involving the election of a candidate for the United States senate. Mr. Roosevelt spoke last week in that part of Maryland where opposition to the administration's man is strong and where promises of large spending programs presumably will make the democratic voters in that section of Maryland responsive.

Presumably also, the contractors who are to supply the raw materials and get the profits from the construction work, the local stores and the local labor who are to be benefited by the spending of $14,000,000 for the two bridges will look forward to the bridge construction as something that will bring them prosperity—but only if the voting goes right in the primary.

The "wicked republicans" used to do things of this sort with what has historically been known as "pork barrel" legislation, but such political crimes and misdemeanors were confined almost wholly to members of congress and never touched the sacred precincts of the white house. Presidents were supposed to be above that sort of thing.

The new deal, however, has brought many a change and established many a precedent, not the least of which is the king can do no wrong concept which defines virtue as 100 percent support of the administration and unmorality as only those things said or done by the persons on the other side of the political fence.

DR. BRADY'S HEALTH TALK.

Four hundred years ago Vesalius, anatomist and surgeon, prescribed an inverted pig trough for patients with weak ankles, pronated feet, early flat feet, to walk on. Later the pig trough was relinquished to the pigs and either a ridge board or lifts under the inner borders of soles and heels, gave the same effect.

Weak foot, potential flat foot, is common in children in their early 'teens whose nutrition is below par. By this we do not imply the child has not had enough to eat, but merely that the diet has not included sufficient of certain elements which are essential for good nutrition, normal growth and vitality, particularly calcium, phosphorous and vitamin D.

A good deal of treatment in the way of special shoes, arch supports, strapping feet and legs to support the weak muscles and ligaments and general tonic treatment which the child or youth generally needs, gives indifferent results because the young person fails to receive the tonic he or she needs. "What boots it," asks Dr. C. Ulysses Moore, in an illuminating article on posture (A. J. Dis. Children, 3, 7, '34) "if by certain exercises or by special devices the physician gets the scaphoid bone back in place so as to correct a flatfoot if he does not at the same time increase the calcification of that bone and its abuting fellows so as to enable them to hold their places permanently. I grant that severe physical deformities are orthopedic problems. But are not the mild cases and those in the initial stages of an insidious onset primarily pediatric?"

Long ago I said here: "In severe cases the feet and calves may require strapping with adhesive plaster for temporary support, or there may be a need of general tonic treatment. . ." A later article on "Foot Strain" I said: "Don't forget that the general muscular tone and state of health has an important bearing. . . ." Again in an article on "Early Flatfoot" several years ago I said: "Three factors contribute toward the occurrence of 'weak feet,' namely, (1) faulty nutrition, (2) neglect of physical education, and (3) improper footwear. The nutritional defect is not clearly defined as yet, but we are justified in assuming that the average dietary in the cities is deficient in calcium and phosphorous, important constituents of ligament, muscle and bone. . ."

You see, we live and learn.

Today it is my opinion, shared as yet by corparatively few physicians, that the fundamental cause of weak feet, pronated feet, weak ankles, potential flatfoot, tired, painful, aching feet, fallen arches in most cases is insufficient vitamin D, sunshine vitamin D, in the intake, thruout the period of childhood up to the age of 18 years.

THE PUBLIC MIND.

Thinks State Fair As It Is Now Managed Bad Influence on Youth.

MURDOCK.—Our once great state fair has, because of an incompetent board, dwindled down to the size of a good county fair Many warnings and suggestions have been voiced by citizens who are vitally interested in the success of this institution, but the board did not think it was anybody's business but theirs how to run the fair. I should think they could see by this time that the patrons of the fair will not stand for the insult. The desecration of the holy Sabbath day by introducing auto racing is resented by the Christian element of the state. The moral atmosphere is so low that parents will not expose their children to it—they stay away. The midway last year was rotten; this year it is worse That of course is the nature of the thing—from bad to worse.

Exposing our youth—the 4-H clubs for a week to all the gambling, from horse racing to bingo, which is unlawful in Nebraska, leaves its mark on the impressionable child, and they come home confused in their minds regarding the teaching received at home and the things offered them at the fair. The whole show is an insult to our citizens, and they stay away because of the character of the entertainment offered. If the state fair is to be the show window of the state, we had better get a new set of window dressers Don't put it into the ads of the "white spot," for it spoils the picture. Is it not possible to arouse the citizens to clean house and build up a fair that shall fulfil its purpose, and of which we can be proud? Our children are too precious to us. We would not send them or take them to a place where everything is offered to debauch them. L. NEITZEL.

TWO CAN SING

by JAMES M. CAIN

I got quiet after a while, and the noise outside died away, and I lit a cigaret, and sat there. After a long time there was a tap on the door. I never moved. It came again, and still again, and then I heard my first name called. It sounded like Doris, and I went to the door and opened it. She was there, in a little green suit, and a brown felt hat, and brown shoes. She came in without looking at me.

"What happened?"

CHAPTER FIFTEEN.

"Weren't you there?" I said.

Doris looked at me then.

"I had to take the children home after the second act. . . . I heard some people talking, on my way back here."

I remembered Lorentz, and his real crime at the Cathedral theater that day. I was glad there was one person in the world that hadn't seen it. Three, because that meant she had taken the kids out before it happened.

"I got the bird," I told her.

"Damn them."

She walked around, saying what she thought of them. Cecil never talked like that. She might tell you they were a pack of hyenas, but she never got sore at them, never regarded them as anything but so many people to be licked. But Doris had felt their teeth, and besides she had a gift for polishing them off, you might say, on account of her cobra blood. The cobra strain was what I wanted then. She snarled it out, and I wanted all she could give. Down in my heart, I knew Cecil was right—that it's never anybody's fault but your own. But I was still bleeding. What Doris had to say, it hit the spot.

I began to pull off the whiskers. She came over and did it for me. She got the towel and wiped off the makeup. She wiped clean, and patted, and frowned, like it was serious business, and said, "Hold still," and I loved it.

"Now you'll do. Stay where you are. I'll put on your shoes."

I guess I don't have to tell you Doris had never put any shoes on for me before. I sat there, and she put them on and tied them, and helped me on with my shirt, my trousers and my coat. But I still didn't know why she had come. I had never seen her like this, but it wasn't any consolation scene, I could see that, and there was nothing in what had happened that explained it. If she hadn't been there when I flopped, what had she come back to the theater for, anyway? She helped me on with my topcoat, gave my arm a little squeeze, and we went out.

In the cab on the way up to my hotel I kept thinking there was something I had forgotten, something I had intended to do. Then I remembered. I was to sign the contracts. I sat back and watched the el posts go back. That was one thing I didn't have to worry about. . . .

When we got into the lobby, I could see something glaring at me from a chair near the elevators, and I didn't tumble at first to what it was. There had been so many glares coming my way lately that one more didn't make much impression. But then I came out of the fog. It was Craig, my partner, whom I hadn't seen since we built the gag chicken coop up in Connecticut, and he had dug in at his place upstate. I blinked, and looked at Doris, and thought maybe that was why she had come around, or anyway had something to do with it. But she seemed as surprised as I was. He still sat there, glaring at us, and then he got up and came over. He didn't shake hands. He started in high, and he was plenty sore.

"Where've you been?"

"And why here? What's the idea of hiding out in this dump? I've been looking for you all night, and it was just by accident that I found you. Just by accident."

Doris cut in, meeker than I ever heard her. "Why—one of the children was threatened with measles and Leonard came down here so he wouldn't be quarantined."

"Couldn't he let somebody know?"

"He—it was only to be for a few days."

That seemed to cool him off a little, and I tried to be friendly. "When did you get to town? I thought you were up there milking cows."

"Never mind when I got to town, and never mind the cows. And cut the comedy. Get this. You've got just 40 minutes to make a train, and pay attention to what I'm telling you."

"Shoot."

"Alabama. You've heard of it?"

"Sounds familiar."

"There's a big government aid railroad bridge going up down there, and we build bridges, this here Craig-Raymond company that we've got, even if you seem to have forgotten it. You get down there, and you get that contract."

"Where is this bridge?"

"I got no time for that. It's all in here, in this briefcase, the whole thing, and you can read it going down. Here's your tickets, for the two of you, and remember, you got 39 minutes. When you get there, I'll wire you our bid. I'll put the whole thing on the wire. It's being figured up now. The main thing now is—get there."

"O. K., chief."

you—"

"Yes, sir."

"Listen to what I'm telling you. This contract—this is no back-country tunnel. This is a bunch of well-bo'n South'ners, dat dey grandaddy had slaves befo' de wa', and they've got to be impressed. You hear that? You take a whole floor in that hotel, and you roll out the liquor, and you step on it. You do all the things that your bum, sassiety, high toned, good-for-nothing upbringing has taught you how to do, and then you do it twice."

"Booh. I know you."

"For once in your life, maybe you can be of some use."

"Just once?"

"If you put it across, you'll be back in time for Christmas. If you don't put it across, you need not come back at all."

"We'll put it across." . . .

Contract Bridge

(Copyright, 1938, by Ely Culbertson.)

There are many ingredients in the concoction known as good defense. Two of these are outstandingly important. First, a player must be able to "read" a lead. He must recognize whether the leader may have certain cards or whether the lead in itself is a denial of such a holding. Once this point is settled, the second prerequisite becomes fairly simple: to select another suit that may be more vulnerable.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

South's honor tricks and distribution should have been expressed with an opening bid of one no trump rather than one heart, but this is merely an academic criticism inasmuch as the same final contract would have been reached.

West opened the spade jack and declarer, for reasons best known to himself, won with dummy's king. He entered his own hand with a heart to the ace, and returned a diamond toward dummy, finessing the ten spot. East won with the queen and gave careful consideration to his return. The play of the spade king on the first trick had been highly informative, although, of course, declarer had not realized that that could be the case. West's opening lead of the spade jack could have been from only one of two combinations. It was, of course, the top of a sequence, but it might be from a holding of J 10 9 x, or from A J 10 9 x. Which it was could be determined only by consideration of declarer's play. If declarer's spade holding had been the queen without the ace, he would not have dreamed of putting up dummy's king. As an elementary play to gain two spade tricks and stoppers, he would have let the opening lead ride to his own queen. Thus, declarer's play of the king was indisputable proof that he and not West had the ace, and, of course, the queen was marked in declarer's hand by the lead of the jack.

Once East determined that it would be futile to pound away at spades, he was led to the correct defense. He returned his fourth best club and, from that point on the defenders were in the driver's seat. Declarer played low, and West did likewise, merely forcing dummy's club queen with the eight spot. Declarer could not run nine tricks without establishing a diamond, and East, on winning with the diamond ace, returned another club through the king, permitting West to cash three club tricks.

Obviously declarer's carelessness in putting up dummy's spade king on the first lead had made matters much easier for the defenders. If the lead had been allowed to ride to the closed hand, and had been won with the queen, East would have had a difficult decision to make as to what card to return after winning with his diamond queen. Under that circumstance he might have credited the opening leader with five spades to to the ace-jack-ten, figuring that South had extra values in clubs to justify his two no trump bid. But even with the play going as it did it took a certain amount of thought on East's part to map out and execute the right defense.

Acute Heart Disease Is Studied

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
President, Chicago Board of Health

THE HEART muscle acts very much like a spring. When a steel spring is damaged, it may work very well for a while. Then, after some heavy strain, the spring will not go back to its original condition. It remains stretched out. The heart is a muscle which goes through its movements over one hundred thousand times a day. Sometimes the muscle suddenly stretches and cannot go back to its original form; it increases in size.

This is called acute dilation of the heart. In this condition the heart often is unable to do its work, and the person dies.

There is another condition which causes an increase in the size of the heart. This is known as "hypertrophy" (hi-per'trof-e). In hypertrophy there is an actual increase in the thickness of the heart muscle. Heart hypertrophy is a result of some injury to the heart valves which makes it necessary for the heart to do more than its normal amount of work. Dilation of the heart may develop if the enlarged heart should be overworked or overstrained.

It is not an easy thing to tell when the heart has suddenly dilated. It is possible sometimes to determine the size of the heart by means of the X-ray and also by what is known as percussion. You have probably all seen the doctor tap on the chest with his finger. This is called percussion. By noticing the various sounds made by the tapping, the doctor is able to determine not only just how large the heart is, but also whether or not there is any congestion in the lungs.

But percussion and the X-ray do not always make it possible to tell when the heart has dilated. There are other signs which are more important, according to Dr. William H. Robey of Harvard university. Of particular importance is a sudden change in the character of the heart sounds. The doctor can listen to the heart beat with a stethoscope, and when the sounds which are normally made by the heart have changed, dilation may be suspected.

If dilation of the heart occurs, the condition needs prompt treatment because it is serious. The individual should be put to bed at complete rest. Digitalis (dij-it-a'lis), a drug which slows and strengthens the heart beat, should be given at once. Every few hours for a day or two the person may need a dose of narcotic to make sure he will rest and sleep.

Acute or sudden dilation of the heart occurs but rarely in a healthy heart, but if the heart has been damaged by disease, overstrain may often lead to dilatation or stretching of the heart.

Marriage Meddlers

A Sequel to "Married Comrades"

By Adele Garrison

WE DID not have to wait long for the arrival of Philip Veritzen at the farm. Neither Lillian nor I wished to risk the element of surprise at the travelers' arrival in any of the household, and by the time we had satisfied Mother Graham's avid curiosity, had instructed Katie to have fresh coffee and a "snack" ready if the travelers should desire it, and had warned Jim to watch for their arrival so that there should be no questioning or delay on the part of the guards set round the place, the clock marked the time which we had estimated as that which a taxi would make from the airport to the farm.

"Nothing to do now but twiddle our fingers," Lillian said as we came back to the library, where Dicky, whom we also had told of the impending arrivals, was reading and smoking, palpably nervous over the delay in starting for the city with Hank and Bill. But he had acquiesced promptly in Lillian's demand that he "stick around on the job" until Phil Veritzen's "hash" was settled, nd had even promised his willing assistance in settling it.

"I don't think we'll even have time for that," I smiled as my ears caught the sound of a motor car coming along the road toward the farm. "There's a car coming."

"Those ears of yours!" Lillian sighed enviously, and then her face brightened.

"You're right," she said. 'I hear it now."

"It's turning in the gate," Dicky said, rising. "I suppose I would better go out and welcome the travelers."

He took a step toward the door, but Lillian had him firmly by the sleeve.

"Restrain your impulses," she told him while my throat muscles loosened from the constriction which had seized them when he spoke of stepping outside the door on this night so full of lurking unseen, unknown danger.

"In the first place," she said, "while there probably isn't any more danger, there's no use of your taking any needless risks."

"Poor Jim's taking them," Dicky replied stubbornly.

Won't Risk a Shot

"No, he isn't," Lillian replied coolly. "Use the brains with which the good God supplied you, a meager equipment, I'll admit, but still adequate for this particular problem. If there is anybody out there with a high-powered, long-range rifle, he isn't going to risk a shot on Jim or the guards. He knows they're not his meat. But if the door opens, and anyone is silhouetted in the doorway, he may take a chance on the figure's being Olga or Olina, and toss a shot this way."

"My Dear," Dicky expostulated with a grin, "do I look like Olga or Olina?"

"You might," Lillian retorted, "if Olga or Olina were dressed in masculine clothing, a ruse which would naturally occur to a hidden watcher coming from the nest of foul conspirators who are gunning for the royal women. So keep the little shirt on, Dicky-bird, and keep indoors. It's too late for the hospitable gesture, anyway. Jim's bringing them in. Now don't be an idiot just because you know how. Keep to one side of the door when you open it."

For a wonder, Dicky obeyed her adjuration, although I knew that he was irritated by her caution, and that if I had issued the same warning he probably would have disregarded it. But the habit of obeying Lillian's rarely expressed wishes is ingrained deeply in his make-up, and to my relief, and, I knew, to Lillian's also, he kept to one side of the door leading to the veranda, as at Jim's knock he unlocked the door and threw it open.

"Welcome to the farmhouse," I said, smiling and extending one hand to the great producer and the other to Noel. "But please come to this side of the door. Jim, will you bring in the luggage at once, please? But be careful at the door."

Goodnight Stories

By MAX TRELL

HAVE YOU ever gone sailing down a rain-river in a matchbox boat? That's what Hanid and Knarf, the shadows with the turned-about names, were doing. Shadows are luckier than children in some ways. They can make themselves any size they please. Just now they were as small as match sticks. So they fitted very nicely inside the boat.

It had rained quite hard. And now the rain-river was rushing along the edge of the road, down to the foot of the hill where the frog pond lay. The matchbox boat sailed along swiftly.

All at once Hanid, who was standing in the front of the boat near the mast (which was made of a twig with a leaf for a sail), shouted back to Knarf, who was steering: "Look out, Knarf! There's a grasshopper ahead of us! It's drowning, Knarf! It can't get out of the water! Oh, we must save it!"

Grasshopper Saved

Knarf quickly threw out the anchor (it was just a bent pin tied to the end of a thread) and the boat stopped. Then Knarf got out a life preserver, made of a bit of cork tied to another piece of thread, and threw it to the drowning grasshopper. "Hold on! Hold on and we'll pull you in!" he shouted.

Fortunately, the grasshopper seized hold of the life preserver with one of its legs and the next minute it was safely inside the boat.

The grasshopper was quite pale with fright. "Thanks . . . thanks for saving my life," it said.

Meanwhile, Knarf pulled up the anchor and the boat continued sailing down the rain-river again. "Are you going very far?" the grasshopper asked.

"We're going to sail far, far away. We're going to see the world," Knarf explained.

"Do you know," said the grasshopper, "I've never seen the world, except just in little hops. Would you mind taking me along with you? I'll do anything you say. Please take me along."

Vike Francis Decides To Take 'Sabbatical' Leave From Football

I May Be Wrong
By John Bentley

There was a change in the Husker uniforms, after all. . . . The boys are wearing white shoestrings instead of black. . . . The more settled things become around the Husker practice field, the more alarming items begin to come out of there. . . Viscount "Vike" Francis will take a year's leave of absence due to ill health. . . . Marvin Plock is having a hard time getting over an old muscle bruise. . . . And the more you study the situation the more you understand Link Lyman's plea for Edsel Wibbels of Walbach. . . Link wants Edsel as a tackle. . . . There's little doubt about Wibbels' making good. . . It's just a question of where the coaches decide to play him. . . He's always been in the backfield, but then Ed Weir had been a fullback at Superior during his high school days. . .

That one day tournament at Pioneers, a feature of the clubhouse dedication program, was largely due to the work of the board of directors headed by Linn Crane. . . . The board assembled some 20 odd prizes that made it look like a city tournament award list. . . Those one day affairs are real tests of stamina, the flight winners and runnersup all plodding 54 holes, provided they played out their nine hole matches. . . . John Kassler, runnerup in the second flight consolations, was beaten by Merle Krapp of Hallam. . . . "And they don't even have a golf course at Hallam," Kissler moaned. . . . Russ Hurd, recently moved here from Denver, is a one armed golfer who can fire around 85 consistently. . .

Link Lyman will again be on the radio thru the football season, Friday and Saturday nights at 6:45. . .

The late Walter Spencer Vosburgh, 83, long time New York handicapper, had definite views on turf betting. . . . He never risked a cent on the ponies because he said: "You can't win," adding, "thorobred horses are less intelligent than dogs but there never was a racehorse as stupid as the man who tries to beat the races."

Bob Mehring gave Joe Nutter of the Providence, R. I. Bulletin material with which the latter ground out some interesting data concerning Nebraska U. football. . . . Of all the players tmt Mehring has ever seen or played against, he rates George Sauer the best. . . . "Sauer could do everything well," Mehring told Nutter. . . . And then Bob went on to say: "In three years time no college football team in the land will be able to beat Nebraska." . . .

And what's all this about Ed Newkirk, Country club pro, being the No. 1 candidate for the job of professional at the Sun Valley, Ida., club? . . . Francis Locke, son of Walter Locke, now editor of the Dayton News, didn't become a major league ball player after all. . . . He's an editorial writer on the Miami News. . . . All during his high school days here Francis was positive about his future—he would be a ball player. . . It's a bit saddening when you consider the real need for good major leaguers. . . . There are plenty of scribblers fingering the public pulse at all times, but what about stopping this runaway joke which the Yankees make annually out of the American league race? . . . Francis stopped here the other day with Mrs. Locke as they were enroute home after a tour of the west coast. . .

Whitney Martin of the Associated Press is here Monday gathering data for a preseason story on the Huskers. . . . Junior chamber kicked off a ticket drive Monday in behalf of Lincoln high football. . . . Season tickets are $1.50 and are transferrable.

HUSKER SOPHOMORE OFF IN WEIGHT AND ORDERED TO REST

Marvin Plock Will Not Be On Deck Until Wednesday Practice.

LEONARD MUSKIN BACK

BY WALTER E. DOBBINS.

Backfield worries began to mount in the Cornhusker camp Monday morning with the announcement from Maj. Jones, chief Husker mentor, that Vike Francis, promising backfield candidate, had elected to stay out of competition this year.

Francis reported under weight and upon the advice of Team Physician Earl Deppen decided to check in his equipment. He will not enrol in school until the second semester.

Vike had his teeth extracted last year and during the summer underwent a tonsilectomy.

Meanwhile reports from the infirmary indicated that Halfback Marvin Plock probably would not be able to report for practice until Wednesday. The "Rabbit" suffered a muscle injury during the softball season and has been under observation since Saturday morning.

Leonard Muskin, looking fit as a fiddle and weighing 207 pounds, reported Monday morning. He explained his absence from Saturday's opening drill as due to car trouble while enroute home from a vacation in Montana.

Nebraska U.'s new chancellor, Dr. C. S. Boucher, made his first appearance at the stadium Monday morning and gave a brief talk to the squad.

MEET A HUSKER

"When I enrolled at Nebraska last fall I never figured on going out for football," Ray Prochaska, 198 pound end candidate from Ulysses, declared.

Ray Prochaska

"I had concentrated on track in high school and hadn't given the grid game much thought."

But today Ray is considered one of the best sophomore prospects on the squad. He played four years of football at Ulysses high; was center on the basketball team and was head man in track competing in the shot and discus events.

He holds the Doane college high school invitational record for the discus with a toss of 133 feet, 6 inches and the Wayne college mark in the same event at 127 feet.

His full name is Raymond Edward Prochaska and he was born in Ulysses, Aug. 9, 1919.

NORFOLK LEADS PLAYOFF.

SIOUX CITY, Ia. (AP). Norfolk held a three to two game lead over Sioux City in the Nebraska State league championship playoff series Monday. The sixth game of the series, scheduled here Sunday night, was rained out. Sioux City won 9 to 6 Saturday night.

PHIL AITKEN WINS

Phil Aitken is again Country club champion, winning the finals Sunday, for the second straight year from Fred Vette, Beatrice, by the same margin as last year, one up. Vette was one up at the end of 18 but was 2 down with 5 to play in the afternoon. He evened it up on No. 17, the 35th hole of the match, but three putted No. 18.

W. H. Browne won the fourth flight championship from C. E. Hinds, by a 2 and 1 margin.

MITCHELL AT DORCHESTER.

DORCHESTER, Neb.—Dean Mitchell has been named athletic coach at Dorchester. He will also teach in the high school here.

BUCS SINK LOWER AS PAUL DEAN IN SHUTOUT VICTORY

Cardinals Nip Pittsburgh In Spite of Firing of Frank Frisch.

CUBS BUMP CINCINNATI

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY.

NEW YORK. (UP). Prestige of the Pittsburgh Pirates plummeted lower after the National league leaders had been licked by a sore arm pitcher trying a comeback on a team without a manager.

The pitcher was Paul Dean, who couldn't win in the Texas league. Even the distraction of seeing their manager, Frankie Frisch, walk off the field, fired by Sam Breadon during the game, failed to hamper the St. Louis Cardinals as they rocked the Pirates with a 5-1 setback.

With a 3½ game lead the Pirates, despite their tumbling tactics, may be harder to dislodge than dissenters suppose. They have a five game advantage on the all important losing side. Time is running highly in their favor. They have 23 games left to paly and the Cubs, Reds and Giants have only 20 each. If the Pirates blow 12 of their games, the Cubs, for instance, would have to win 14 out of 20 to win the pennant.

In losing to Paul Dean Sunday the leaders didn't even look like a good second division club. They made 12 hits and had Dean in hot water on numerous occasions. In the eighth they had runners on second and third and none out and couldn't score. It took Johnny Rizzo's twelfth homer with one on and Al Todd's seventh with none on to count three of their four runs. Johnny Mize's 26th homer with two on tied the score 3-3 and sent Jim Tobin on his way. Arky Vaughan had a perfect day at bat, "4 for 4" but made an error that figured in the late scoring.

No. 18 For Bill.

Big Bill Lee pitched his 18th victory and hoisted the Cubs back into undisputed possession of second place with a 2-0 triumph over Cincinnati. He allowed only four hits, beating Paul Derringer who failed for the second time in quest of his 20th win. Stan Hack's single, Billy Herman's double and Hack's homer scored for Chicago.

Luke Hamlin hung the 14th shutout of the season on the Giants as Brooklyn scored a 3-0 shutout. The Giants are now tied with the Phillies for the most shutouts.

Oregon State Has Had Nebraska Coach for Past Eighteen Years

Rutherford, Schissler and Stiner Direct Grid Elevens.

BY WALTER E. DOBBINS.

Oregon State college at Corvallis has had a Nebraska man as coach for 18 years. . . . Dick Rutherford, Husker 1913-15, headed the Beaver staff from 1920-1924 and then Paul J. Schissler took over for nine seasons. . . . Lonnie Stiner, 1926 Cornhusker captain, has been at the helm since 1933. . . .

Iowa State will have two games under its belt before it faces the Huskers in the Scarlet's first home appearance Oct. 8. . . . The Cyclones tackle Denver U. in a night game at the Mile High city Sept. 23 and then clash with Luther college at Ames Oct. 1. . . . The Cyclones have only three regulars back—Jim Kirkpatrick, Bob Laughlin and Ralph Kelly—but have a wealth of inexperienced material. . . . Average age of the squad of some 40 hopefuls is 16 years. . . .

Howard Tuttle, 19 year old State loop umpire from Ava, Ill., is still in a Norfolk hospital suffering from a fractured skull when hit by a foul tip off Pete Monahan's bat. . . .

Harold Cowan, Hastings Tribune columnist wonders if Keith Howard, 225 pound Nelson high tackle, isn't doing a bit of window shopping. . . . He was in Lincoln looking over the Cornhuskers one day last week and then showed up in the Hastings college camp. . . . He was missed the next day and friends reported he was headed in the direction of Southern Calif. .

Chartrand Hurt Before.

Babe Chartrand, Beatrice pitcher who died of a leg infection, was injured some six weeks back when hit by a batted ball in Sioux City, Ia. . . . It also developed that Chartrand had suffered from infection four years previous after fracturing his leg. . . . He was considered one of the best prospects in the Carter loop. . . .

Warren Stephenson has inaugurated secret practice at Nebraska City high. . . . Nebcity has 22 boys averaging around 150 pounds. . . . Bill Mead, 235 is heaviest while Jack Ryder, 180, who has been shifted from end to tackle, is next in line. . . .

What of Old Timers?

With popular Mick Cochrane and Frankie Frisch feeling the "knife" before the conclusion of the 1938 baseball campaign, one wonders what is going to become of a few of the other old timers still in the playing ranks. . . . It looks like "finis" for fellows like Goose Goslin, Mule Haas, Luke Sewell, Heinie Manush and a few others who aren't hitting the size of their respective hats. . . .

Tom "Lefty" Seats has won six and lost six games with Decatur in the Three Eye loop. . . . Alex Filbert was hitting .279 for Cedar Rapids in the same circuit. . . .

Wes Ferrell had hope of taking a turn in the outfield a few seasons back when his salary flipper showed signs of the wear and tear of major league toil. . . . His .223 batting average this season, however is not so convincing. . . .

SPORTS MIRROR.

Keep Lancaster County Out Of The Red

Present officers have kept this county on the pay-as-you-go plan.

DO YOU WANT THIS PLAN TO CONTINUE?

There is not a registered warrant outstanding. The county has no bonded indebtedness. The county commissioners, due to careful handling of county funds by themselves and other county officeholders, cut the county tax levy for 1938 from 4½ mills to 3.75 mills, saving $95,000 to taxpayers of the county.

KEEP THE COUNTY ON THIS HIGH STANDARD

Vote in November for the men who have maintained this economical policy of administration and who pledge to do all in their power to keep the county out of debt.

VOTE FOR THESE CANDIDATES:

For County Treasurer

C. E. BERG.

The office of treasurer of Lancaster county is so important and handles so much money that the officer is placed under a bond of $250,000.

The county is fortunate in having Mr. Berg for treasurer. Fitted by an apprenticeship as deputy before the commissioners expressed their faith in his ability and integrity by appointing him on Sept. 1, 1936, he has made an excellent record. He was elected in November 1936.

Audit of his office in January showed an excellent set of records. The bonding company's representatives, also commended the office for its efficiency and excellent business methods.

Re-elect C. E. Berg.

For Clerk of District Court

W. CLAUDE SURCHAM.

W. Claude Burcham, clerk of the district court has contributed to the savings for Lancaster county by economical administration of his office. Earnings last year were sufficient to pay all salaries of the office and leave a balance of $7,283.86. Fees collected amounted to $19,756.51 with $2,547.35 in fees due from the county but not collected, making a total of $22,283.86. Salaries of the office amounted to $15,000.

Last year 1,279 cases were filed in this office. Trust funds amounted to $199,309.71 Cash paid out $200,248.66. The office of clerk is an important office It demands a trained experienced man.

Re-elect W. Claude Burcham for clerk of the district court.

For County Assessor

HARRY W. SCOTT.

As deputy county assessor and as a candidate for assessor on the republican ticket, Harry W. Scott heartily endorses the economical administration of the present office holders and will do all in his power to aid in keeping Lancaster county on the pay-as-you-go plan.

Mr. Scott spent eight years in the office of the state tax commissioner, two years of which he was tax commissioner of the state. With this experience he believes that he is amply qualified to administer the affairs of the office of county assessor.

Vote for Harry W. Scott for county assessor.

For County Clerk

J. B. MORGAN.

J. B. Morgan, county clerk of Lancaster county, has always been an advocate of the pay-as-you-go plan for Lancaster county. As county clerk, handling the claims that come into his office against the various funds, he has kept careful record of all expenditures. For the convenience and information of the officers of the county he has kept a weekly record of these costs of county government and from such records county officers are enabled at any time to check up their expenditures.

Re-elect J. B. Morgan county clerk and help keep Lancaster county on the pay-as-you-go plan.

For County Sheriff

JAMES W. DAVIS.

James W. Davis served for almost twelve years as deputy sheriff under Claude P. Hensel, who was for sixteen years sheriff of Lancaster county and made an enviable record. On account of the record of Mr Davis, the county commissioners upon the recent death of Sheriff Hensel, named James W. Davis to fill the sheriff unexpired term. The republican county central committee showed its faith in him by naming him as the republican candidate to fill the vacancy due to the death of Sheriff Hensel Mr. Davis pledges to carry on the office in the same efficient manner that it was conducted by his predecessor.

James W. Davis for Sheriff. Elect a man trained for the position.

For Register of Deeds

Fees amounting to $45,808.40 were collected by the office of register of deeds during J. G. Vaughan's first four year term, compared to $35,120 paid for salaries during the same period. Mr. Vaughan has practiced economy in his office. Not only has he carried out an administration of economy, but he is trained for the work he is engaged in. Training is an essential qualification for this office. Titles to a hundred million dollars in property are dependent upon these records. Title to your realty is no better than the records. Let Mr. Vaughan continue to guard your title. His is qualified.

Vote for J. G. Vaughan. He has made a good record.

J. G. VAUGHAN.

For County Commissioner

Ira Miller, former sheriff of Lancaster county, now republican nominee for county commissioner from the Second district, is heartily in sympathy with an economical administration of county affairs and if elected will do all in his power to aid the county to remain on the pay-as-you-go plan He favors reducing expenses where it does not sacrifice efficiency nor jeopardize the welfare of any of its citizens.

Mr. Miller has been for forty years a resident and tax payer of Lancaster county. He was sheriff from 1919 to 1922, a republican constable for 8½ years and for 10½ years with a large insurance company.

Vote for Ira Miller for County Commissioner Second District. Entire County Votes on Commissioners.

IRA MILLER.

For County Attorney

County Attorney Towle has saved money for the taxpayers by his able defense of damage suits. Suits for $293,092.70 were filed against the county during his tenure in office. Judgments paid by the county on damage suits actually reached the small total of $7,483.10.

Use the same good common sense in selecting an attorney to handle the county's legal business as you would in selecting an attorney to handle your own business. Experience is of more value than experiment.

Re-elect Max G. Towle county attorney. His record deserves it.

MAX G. TOWLE.

For County Commissioner

Clinton J. Mitchell has insisted ever since he has been a member of the county board that Lancaster county stay on the pay-as-you-go plan. He has insisted that the county handle its funds in such manner as to avoid any necessity of registering warrants or placing the county under a bonded indebtedness.

As county commissioner, Mr Mitchell publicly expresses his appreciation for the co-operation the rest of the officers have given the board by economical administrations which enabled this board to cut the county levy from 4½ mills to 3.75 mills for the coming year.

Re-elect C. J. Mitchell for commissioner from the Third district. Entire County Votes on Commissioners.

CLINTON J. MITCHELL.

For County Surveyor

In no county in the state are the roads being developed as they are in Lancaster County At the end of this year there will be 700 miles of surfaced all-weather roads in the county, or about 44 percent of all county highways There is no levy on property in Lancaster County for road funds. The money for highway building and for maintenance comes from gasoline tax and automobile licenses.

Mr. Weaver originated the idea for a rock quarry for Lancaster county, one of the finest relief projects that has been devised. It saves the county money by avoiding direct relief, and returns to the taxpayers many miles of good farm-to-market roads.

Vote for L. W. Weaver for County Surveyor.

Husker Backfield Offers Brighter Picture Than Line for '38 Season

Withdrawal of Francis, Plock's Injury Early Handicap.

Note: This is the last of the series of articles discussing the various positions on the Cornhusker varsity.

BY WALTER E. DOBBINS.

Studded with a string of brilliant sophomore prospects and a fair scattering of veteran ball carriers, Nebraska U.'s backfield takes on a somewhat brighter hue as compared to the forwards.

Right now the big question mark is Marvin Plock. If the Rabbit recovers from a muscle injury and is in top shape by the time the Minnesota game rolls around, Major Jones' worries will be diminished.

Should Plock fail to respond to rest and treatment, the Biffer will be obliged to shove Sophomore Harry Hopp of Hastings into the breach.

With Vike Francis electing to remain out of competition until next fall, Maj. Jones has only four No. 3 backs or quarterbacks available. They are Thurston Phelps, the forward passing wizard from Exeter; George Porter, a junior from Denver, Colo.; George "Bus" Knight, sophomore from Jackson high of Lincoln and Chuck Worrall.

Callihan is Ready.

In the No. 2 or fullback spot, Bill Callihan, 200 pound Grand Islander, will bear the brunt of the heavy work. His understudies are Bill Andreson, another senior and a pair of nifty looking sophomores —Edsel Wibbels of Wolbach and Eldon Nuernberger of Wakefield.

Fleet Jack Dodd, leading scorer on the squad last fall, is in the No. 1 spot at left halfback. He is a senior and ripe for a great season. Dodd's long runs were a feature of the 1937 campaign.

Roy "Cowboy" Petsch, the rugged lad from Scottsbluff, is being groomed as a reserve. Petsch was carried on the squad last fall but did not compete. Theos Thompson, Lincoln, Walter Luther, Cambridge and Bud Cather, Lincoln, are the other candidates.

Herman Rohrig and Kenneth Simmons operate over on the right side along with Hopp and Plock and round out a better than average outlay of leather toters.

First Four Light.

If the Biffer sticks to his guns and shoots Phelps, Dodd, Plock and Callihan against the Gophers, the Husker backs will average only 176 pounds. The second unit, intact, includes Petsch, 177; Wibels, 203; Porter, 180 and Hopp, 190 and will average around 188.

However, Maj. Jones and his chief backfield aide, Glenn Presnell, may make a few shifts here and there before the opening whistle on Oct. 1.

Summing up, the backs look considerably better on paper than the line. The passing should be better with Phelps and Porter in command and the punting will be average altho the sophomores still have a long way to go before perfection is obtained.

If the line holds up the Huskers will go places. If it crumbles the Scarlet will be just another ball club. They should improve in every department as the season goes on.

"We will take each game as it comes and do our best," Maj. Jones declared

But we gather that the Major hopes fans don't expect too much

There is still no substitute for experience.

YEAR'S LEAVE

Vike Francis, promising sophomore back, will take a year's rest from football. He has been underweight. Vike will enrol next September and be eligible for three more years starting next fall.

FRANK FRISCH 3RD MANAGER TO LOSE JOB 1938 SEASON

Cardinal Pilot Linked With Giants and Brooklyn Clubs.

STONEHAM IN DENIAL

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP). The major leagues were swept clean of the three managers who dominated the 1934-35 baseball pennant picture with the passing of Frankie Frisch as pilot of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Frisch, who celebrated his 40th birthday only last week, joins Mickey Cochrane and Charley Grimm on the major casualty list for 1938. It was Frankie's 1934 National league champion team that won the name of the "Gashouse Gang" by riding over Cochrane's Detroit Tigers in the world series, and it was Black Mike's Tigers that beat Grimm's Cubs four out of six for the world championship in 1935.

While Frisch's release was not entirely unexpected, the manner of its announcement was a surprise. President Sam Breadon gave the news to reporters in the middle of Sunday's game with Pittsburgh. Frisch was in uniform on the first base coaching line. At the end of the inning he went thru the dugout to the dressing room and began packing.

Speculation as to whether Frisch might succeed Bill Terry as bench manager of the Giants while Bill devotes his time exclusively to his general manager's position, was spiked in New York by Giant President Horace Stoneham.

One of the Best.

"I have always considered Frisch one of the best leaders in baseball," Stoneham said, "but I can say definitely that there is nothing to rumors that he will succeed Terry on the bench." Terry signed a new contract last season for a period of five years covering his general and bench managerial duties at a reported salary of $45,000 per year.

Most likely of the rumors has "Onkel" Frankie going to the Dodgers under his old friend Larry McPhail, who has said openly, "There'll be some changes made" if the Dodgers don't finish better than seventh—the perch they now occupy.

SPORTLIGHT by Grantland Rice

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—In the neighborhood of 170 young and middle aged club swingers will spend Monday and Tuesday around Oakmont's famous treadmill. By Tuesday night there will be 64 survivors left for match play. By Wednesday night, after two 18 hole scrambles, there will be only 16 saved from the wreckage.

Competitors for this 42nd annual national amateur championship hail from near and distant points around the globe from every important golf sector in the U. S., from England and Australia.

There are kids under 20. There are such remembered veterans as Quimet, Evans, Sweetser and Guilford who came to fame from 20 to 30 years ago. Yet, only a few days ago, Jess Sweetser shot a 65 over the difficult Maidstone course to prove that he is still among the elect

I followed Chick Evans in 1907 and I saw Francis Quimet come to the front in 1913. That's quite a spell back of 1938. But when you consider Oakmont's length and a week's all day play, this championship belongs to younger legs and less harried nerves, to concentration the years haven't yet worn thin.

You bump into one set query as you wander around the course. "Who will pull it off? Who will pick the lucky number over Oakmont's 7,000 yard roulette wheel?"

I should say that Charley Yates, new British champion from Atlanta, has the better individual chance.

OAKMONT MEMORIES.

Oakmont is loaded with memories. Looking back, I can still see Francis Quimet and Chick Evans in their famous 36 hole duel just after the war, a match that Quimet won with a fine recovery shot and a seven foot putt on the last green—the battle between 17 year old Bobby Jones and Dave Herron when the blast of a megaphone wrecked any lingering chance Bob might have had—the iron shot that Tommy Armour struck to the last pin against Harry Cooper and the 12 foot putt that brought him a 3 and a tie, Armour winning in the playoff. I can still recall the look of anguish on Cooper's face when he three-putted the 17th green from four feet away, his first putt rolling just as far below the hole. That was 11 years ago, and Lighthorse Harry has never broken thru the open since.

There was the surprising win of Sam Parks three years ago with Jimmy Thomson and Walter Hagen in close pursuit, probably Hagen's final bid—a championship Hagen might have won if a cloudburst and a half cyclone hadn't set him back so far.

From early Monday morning until Tuesday night you will hear pulses popping and taut nerves cracking as two-thirds of the field drop by the wayside to wait another year.

M'LEMORE

Princeton Coach Mixes Music With Football.

BY HENRY M'LEMORE.

NEW YORK. (Copyright 1938 UP). Working on the theory, perhaps, that if sweet music makes cows yield more milk and chickens lay more eggs, it will also make a Tiger get more touchdowns, Tad Wieman has decided to furnish his Princeton football players with swing music this season.

Wieman, who succeeded Fritz Crisler as head coach of the Tigers, announced that swing sessions would have a definite place on the training schedule. The music will be provided by a campus band whose members are ready to fight for Princeton to the last clarinet, cymbal and tenor sax.

In addition to the swing music, Wieman also plans to employ the services of a comedian and crooner for his players. He is of the opinion that the arduous practices become very tiresome to the players, and that they need entertainment to prevent them from going stale

Wieman's experiment will be watched with the keenest interest by his rival coaches. If the "floor show" system builds the Tiger into a powerful beast, and he starts prowling eastern gridirons with success, you may be certain that Yale, Dartmouth, Harvard, Army and the other Princeton foes will put in a hurry call to a big New York booking agency for bands, comics and torch singers.

They'll All Bid.

If Princeton's team, fired to fighting pitch by "Flat Foot Floogie" from its swing band and the latest jokes by its comics, start winning all its games, Yale undoubtedly will make a bid for Bennie Goodman's orchestra and Eddie Cantor. Instead of an inspirational talk by Coach Ducky Pond before a game, the Yales will listen to a "jam session" and a series of rapid fire gags by Cantor. For use in case the team has a bad first half and needs a lift, the Yale athletic board will have Rudy Vallee on hand, ready to fire the team with "Tisket-Tasket."

Harvard will engage Bob Burns; Stanford will hire Bing Crosby; Dartmouth will top Pittsburgh's offer to buy Guy Lombardo, and Texas university will become a 3 to 1 favorite to clean up the Southwest when it announces the signing of Jack Benny and Paul Whiteman.

There will be cries of over-emphasis when St. Mary's engages the marine band and the three stooges, and Ohio State signs the Boston Philharmonic, the Boswell Sisters, and W. C. Fields. The Carnegie foundation will order an investigation when Georgia Tech hires Fred Allen to assist Bill Alexander.

All of these happenings are, of course, dependent on how the Princeton experiment works out. There is more than a vague possibility that it will fail. Or the comic may put the boys to sleep with an unbroken string of Pat and Mike stories.

Only time will tell whether Tad Wieman's idea was the result of genius or that last bite of lobster before retiring.

FIELD FULL OF DARK HORSES IN ANNUAL SIMON PURE TEST

Oakmont Parries Thrusts Of Those Seeking To Break Par.

SIX FORMER CHAMPS

BY HARRY FERGUSON.

OAKMONT, Pa. (UP). The ones who play for nothing but the love of the game go storming out Monday across a long, trap-infested course in quest of the U. S. amateur golf championship.

Tough old Oakmont, a frowning forbidding layout sprawling across the Pennsylvania hills, is going to wreck many a heart and hope before twilight Saturday when someone will sink the putt that will make him the national champion. It was big news over the week end when anybody beat Oakmont's stiff par of 72 in a practice round, and the scores are expected to soar when 166 men seek 64 match play positions in two medal rounds of 18 holes Monday and Tuesday. Anybody who can put together two rounds totaling 160 seems safe for a match play position.

Johnny Goodman, Omaha insurance salesman who won last year at Portland, Ore., is defending against a field crammed with dark horses and men who have won their laurels in other tournaments. The field is so classy that six former amateur champions besides Goodman—Jess Sweetser, Chick Evans, S. D. Herron, Jess Guilford, Sandy Somerville and Johnny Fischer—are fighting for another cut of the glory.

Oakmont has been softened up a little since the nightmare National open of 1935 when the greens were skinned so thin that the best pros in the country complained that they ought to be provided with billiard cues. Deep traps behind the greens have been planted with grass and the others made less hazardous. But there is still trouble everywhere you turn.

Tony Galento Plans Wholesale Slaughter as He Licks "Ammonia"

Jersey Nightstick Swears He'll Wallop Joe Louis.

BY JOHN LARDNER.

Copyright by the NANA (The Lincoln Journal and other newspapers).

NEW YORK.—The last time I saw Tony Galento before he caught pneumonia, the scholarly fellow was reviewing the Louis-Schmeling fight, the second one.

I ran across Mr Galento a couple of days ago, somewhat off his beat. He looked a little less spherical than he did, and the plump cigar was absent from his jaw, by doctor's orders, and he was maybe a couple of tones paler than of yore, but the famous Galento fettle was never finer.

"Well, I beat that bum ammonia," said Anthony proudly, and that sums it up.

A moment later, the Jersey nightstick was buying on the trail of Joe Louis again, resuming at the point where "ammonia" interrupted him

"He's a bum," said Tony Galento, "Tony Galento fears nobody, and not Louis least of all. Listen, this is no gag. I can't fight Louis till I get myself a reputation, so I will have to beat some other bums first. This other Lewis, this other bum, John Henry Lewis I will beat that bum in Atlantic City this winter, and then I will beat the other bum. Maybe they will make me fight some other bum in between them, but pretty soon I will get a match with the other bum, I mean Joe Louis. Then I will beat the bum's brains out."

Mike Jacobs Mad.

Tony's future is a bit cloudy just now, and not because of pneumonia He is matched with John Henry Lewis, all right, but the match is sponsored by Muggsy Taylor, not by Mike Jacobs. Mr. Jacobs resents this infringement of copyright, and Tony Galento and Joe Jacobs are therefore out of favor with the big fellow at the moment. Until he smiles upon them again, there will be no matches with the Baers, the Barlunds, and, above all, Louis.

But that can be fixed. Tony is too good a box office bet to be frozen out of Mike's white hope tournament.

He's not a very good fighter, Tony, and I doubt if anyone except himself believes that he is But he's a nice fellow to have around, and it's good to see him back, especially when he simplifies the heavyweight situation as follows:

"You can quote Tony Galento, the Jersey nightstick, that he has beaten that bum ammonia You can quote him that he is back to the wars and will beat all them other bums' brains out."

NEW YORK (AP) Ending one of the most crucial days in European history since the World war the stock market Monday had shown ability to take the crisis in stride and prices after early irregularity showed a number of gains running to 1 to 3 points Steels and motors began the late morning improvement which carried thru the day and was around the day's best levels at the close

The session was conspicuous for the timid pace of dealings as traders awaited the fateful speech of Chancellor Adolf Hitler on the central European situation The ticker tape came to a virtual standstill when the German leader began his address at Nurnberg which might cast the die for peace or war in Europe However coming as it did nearly at the finish of business the news was too late to materially affect prices Transfers approximated 600 000 shares

From the start the American market took its pattern from a rise in London Paris Amsterdam and Berlin where trading was restricted and the price movement undersize with some bargains at the end

Emphasizing the better brand of business at home was what then appeared recently in the shadow of war like developments abroad was the report of the American Iron & Steel Institute showing mill operations this week scheduled to be the best since last November The institute estimated turn it at 45 5 percent of capacity up 1 points a rise that more than offset the dip reported the previous week by the labor day shut down in many plants

Observers noted that the mild buying which turned the stock market was not especially directed toward the specalled war babies Steels were in some demand but apparently mostly on the strength of improving current business Such other armament issues as copper and aircrafts enjoyed a marked inquiry for the most part A few chemicals advanced on small demand

In London open gold sold market a new high price for more than three years was established as hoarders expressed unfamiliess at the world political outlook An addita was that this demand was met by other hoarders who thought dollar balances in New York might be safer than gold in the event of war tearing the world to bits Unaffected in the main in the New York exchange market the pound sterling was as low in relation to the dollar as it has been in more than three years

Wall street brokerage forces continued for the most part to feel that chances favored European peace for the time being but most were nevertheless encouraging customers to hold aloof until the picture became clearer

WHEAT SLANTS DOWNWARD

Visible Supplies Up Nearly 4 Million Bushels

CHICAGO (AP) Despite uneasiness over the European political crisis Chicago wheat values had a downward slant from start to finish An increase of 3 983 000 bushelds in the United States wheat visible supply total was noted Little or no export interest developed regarding wheat from this country

At the close Chicago wheat futures were ⅛ to 1 lower compared with Saturday's finish Sept 61¾ Dec 62¾@⅞ corn ⅛@⅜ down Sept 51⅞@¾ Dec 49½@⅝ and oats unchanged to ⅛ off

Corn declined with wheat Cables from Liverpool said American corn is far out of line for export abroad Russian wheat is quoted 21 to 24 cents a bushel cheaper than American corn The first new corn was received at Saint Louis

Dearth of aggressive buying was an influential factor in bringing about declines here For the time being the critical aspect of the European political situation was apparently operating as a check on purchasers The Liverpool market due ⅞ off to ¾ up showed a tendency to sag and in various cases registered 1⅛ cents setback

One outstanding handicap to price upturns was a report that Russia continued exporting wheat and barley as fast as possible Cables said 6 000 000 bushels of wheat and barley cleared from Black sea ports last week in addition to 4 000 000 bushels exported the week previous Meanwhile Canada's export surplus was estimated at 282 000 000 bushels against only 92 957 000 bushels including flour in 1937-38 and 195 221 000 in 1936 37

Corn rye and oats sympathized with wheat There were no indications of any important foreign demand for American corn

GRAIN NOTES.

CHICAGO (AP) Active commission houses on the buying side of the corn market in the world is a major depressing factor on the wheat market traders said

A southwestern cash wheat distributor reported to Thomson and McKinnon a belief that good rains which would be expected in March would be used for fall seeding

Comparison of the Sept 1 private crop experts average estimates of grain production this season and the forecasts of the Government Corn 2 778 000 000 bushels and 2 454 526 000 spring wheat 252 000 000 and 253 514 000 oats 1 021 000 000 and 1 034 347 000 barley 251 000 000 and 250 360 000

LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO (AP) Big runs in the cattle and sheep departments checked buyer enthusiasm in this section of the livestock trade but the hog supply was confined to comparatively small proportions with the result that swine prices continued to advance

Gains of 10 to 15 cents and more in hogs put the top up to $9 40 highest in about a month The run was 1 000 less than expected Most wholesaling quotations were unchanged but traders said the condition of the market was favorable The general cost of livestock was the highest in 2½ weeks and near the best level of the year The average hog price was the highest in six weeks

Most cattle prices were steady with the top of $15 35 equaling the highest of the year Early spring lamb sales however were weak to 25 cents lower

SEEDED PLAYERS IN NATIONAL NET MEET

Sixteen Survivors Women's Division Bear Out Handicappers

FOREST HILLS, N Y (UP) The year's best job of sports handicapping was on display when the national tennis singles championship moved into the fifth day of play on the courts of the West Side club

Before the tournament started last Thursday the officials seeded 16 women players—8 Americans and 8 foreigners Monday these 16 were the only survivors of the big field that started out in quest of the title vacated by Senorita Anita Lizana of Chile

The seeded lists will be shattered by nightfall however because Monday's matches pit the favorites one against the other Perhaps the feature match is the one in which Helen Hull Jacobs four times winner of the title meets Margot Lumb of England

Budge Is Favored

The men's field has been reduced to 32 and in the reducing it was proved that Donald J Budge is virtually a cinch to again win the title and become the first man in history to score a grand slam in tennis He already holds the Australian French and English singles titles Budge has toyed with all of his opponents to date If all the best features of his opposition were centered in one man Budge still would be practically unbeatable He has all the shots in tennis and executes them perfectly, when pressed

GUARANTEE OF PEACE SEEN

Friendship of United States Is Prized by France

BLERANCOURT, France (AP) Dedicating a wing of the Franco-American museum to American volunteers who served with the French army during the World war, Minister of Education Jean Zay declared friendship between France and the United States was a guarantee of universal peace

The minister spoke in the presence of U S Ambassador Will iam Bullitt Gen Henri J E Gouraud retired military governor of Paris members of the American embassy and representatives of the French government

America and France feel at this moment with profound gravity that their union is not only of value by itself by the impulses of heart and the sympathies it consecrates by the benefit it brings to the two nations but that it is of value also perhaps above all because of the guarantee of universal peace Zay said

The union of America and France not only is a moral contract signed for the happiness of the two contractors it assumes also a charge and a mission That the two democracies since their birth have agreed in defense of the same ideal and engaged themselves to preserve their faith in this ideal is sufficient to reassure those who might doubt the future of mankind

BULLITT MISQUOTED.

PARIS (AP) Interpretations of U S Ambassador William C Bullitt's speech at Bordeaux France Sept 3 attributing to him the statement that France and the United States were indefectively united in war as in peace were withdrawn by newspapermen who reported them Among these was the Bordeaux correspondent who dictated the phrase to the Paris bureau of the Associated press and later insisted upon the accuracy of his report The correspondent said there had been a misinterpretation of the words the ambassador actually pronounced

NEW YORK (AP) The bond market moved irregularly The general trend in the active issues was lower with U S government obligations and foreign loans particularly weaker Treasury loans were off around 6-32nds to around 10-32ds in the more active issues Volume, however was fairly light The drop in governments, bond circles reported was due primarily to readjustments in portfolios as a result of the new treasury issue with the European situation wielding some influence in the market primarily as it affects large holders who wanted to get in a more liquid position to await outcome of the Sudeten controversy

The foreign loan list kept pace with the decline in treasury issues Leaders in this group were off around a point or more Domestic corporate liens were pretty well mixed with gains and losses in all the groups

Among the railroad issues fractional losers included Santa Fe 4s of 95 N Y Central 5s Nickel Plate 4 4s and Pennsylvania 5s General 4s of 65 Up fractions to a point or more were Great Northern 4s of 16 Illinois Central 4 5s and Union Pacific 3 5s of 71

Pacific Gas 5s were off around 1 4 points and others on the downside in the list of industrials and utilities included Bethlehem Steel 3 3s Goodyear 5s Pacific Telephone 5s and Pacific Gas 4 5s American Telephone 3 3s of 56 and International Telephone 5s were a shade ahead

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND by EDWARD A. WIGGAM

LET'S FIGHT!
1 IS IT NORMAL FOR A WOMAN TO WANT TO MARRY AND ALSO TO WANT A CAREER? CAN SHE ACHIEVE BOTH? YOUR OPINION
ARE MEN COLLEGE STUDENTS WITH THEIR YOUTHFUL VIGOR AND FIGHTING INSTINCTS AT THEIR HEIGHT, REALLY OPPOSED TO WAR? YES OR NO
3 DOES THE GOOD LEADER INSPIRE CONFIDENCE BY MAKING HIS FOLLOWERS THINK HE GIVES THEM THEIR IDEAS OR THAT HE GETS MANY IDEAS FROM THEM? YOUR OPINION

1 Several surveys show the great majority are strongly opposed to war This is partly due to their understanding of the childish crowd motives that cause wars and of their frightful results and partly because the so called fighting instincts have little to do with war Wars are usually brought on by leaders who develop in the people systems of fixed ideas which they make them think are backed by God or state or some superrational agency By these they develop a national paranoia a delusion of their own grandeur and the glory of belonging to a big powerful rich nation It is this silly emotional fustian that causes most wars

2 A new study of this old problem has just been made by Kathleen Hertzt and J R Shannon The study takes in the 1967 most notable women in the United States —those listed in Who's Who in America all women with famous careers of their own It shows more than half are married and more than half of the married women are mothers with an average of two to three children and many with four or five One of the most famous has 11 As to being normal another study shows that the Who's Who people are more completely normal than the average This seems to answer the question in the affirmative

3 The real leader—not the dominating dictator—will do both He makes his followers feel they can rely on the Old Man for ideas in all emergencies but also that they help him with their ideas—whether they really do or not In this way he builds a feeling of loyalty and security that scarcely anything can break The nominating dictator is afraid of his position He always feels insecure

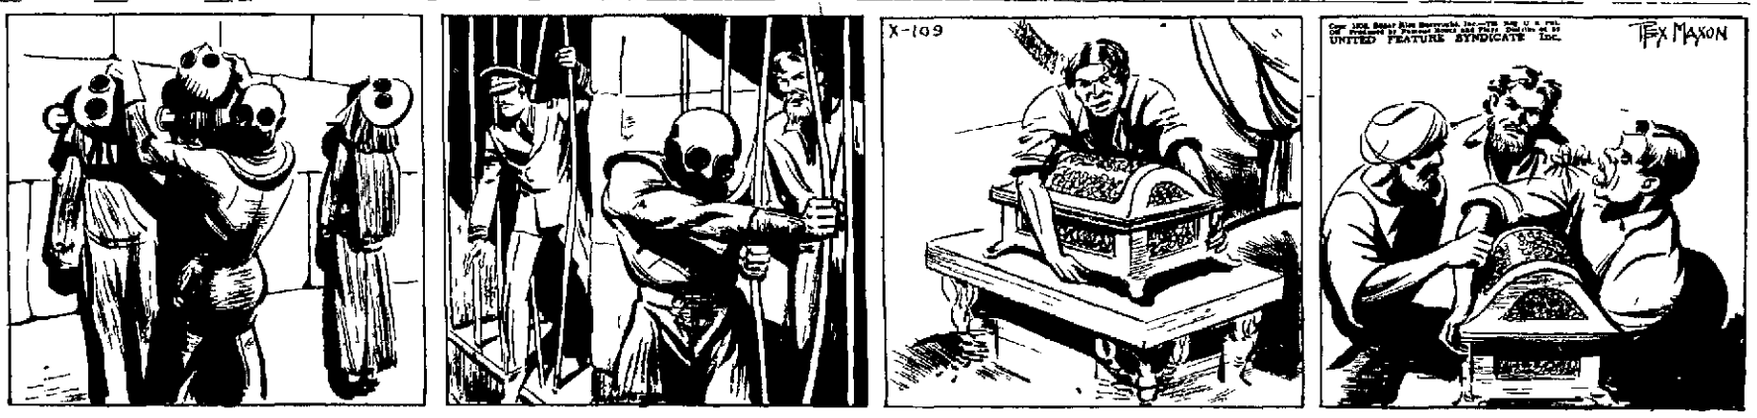
TARZAN and the FORBIDDEN CITY



The aroused ptome stared blinkingly for a moment at Tarzan and Herkuf then sank back to sleep He had mistaken them for fellow ptomes And now the two intruders continued to the end of the dormitory where Tarzan lifted two water suits from their pegs

They passed then to the room of the captives The mighty Tarzan bent the bars of the cages and released them one by one Brian and Lavac were ordered to don the water suits the others were instructed to seek freedom as best they could by the secret passage

But the half mad Atan Thome had come to Athair in quest of the fabulous father of diamonds He would not leave without it As soon as he was released from his cage he leaped forward to Brulor's altar snatched up the jewelled casket and hugged it close

Instantly Lal Tarsk and Brian Gregory rushed at him to wrest the precious casket from him Atan Thome screamed—a wild mad scream. A moment later a horde of ptomes aroused by the sound poured into the throne room their tridents ready for slaughter
